A STARTLING DISCOVERY.

WRITTEN FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER,
BY MITTENS WILLETT.

When little Miss Fresh
First joined the perfesh,
She was such a precocious young thing
That sweet Miss Soubrette
Quite took to the pet,
And drew her right under her wing.

A fair chaperone
She made, I must own,
And her dainty young charge was her pride;
Together they dressed,
And at night they would rest
On the same downy couch, side by side.

Miss Soubrette, you must know,
Had a dashing young beau—
'Twas whispered the day had been set;
But oh, what a sin!
Many weeks it had been
Since the last time the couple had met.

One day, to surprise her,
He sought his Eliza,
And made for the village hotel,
Where all of the troupe
Enjoyed the same soup,
And looked for the name he knew well.

He opened the book,
With joy in his look,
Then started back, angry and wild;
He could naught but stare,
For registered there
Was: "Eliza Soubrette and child."

THE TREASURE OF CIBOLA.

WRITTEN FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER.
BY MRS. LYMAN HART.

It was evening in the fair valley of Rio Pescado. At the ruins of an ancient chapel near the mountain's southern slope a traveler alighted from his mule, and, weary with long riding, lay down to rest in the shadow of its moss grown walls.

While his tired beast cropped the herbage close by, the stranger's gaze wandered to distant fields of waving corn, luxurious vineyards, orchards of apricots, and still farther in the distance fine ranches with their grazing herds. Here and there along the valley small stone houses—some stuccoed, some terraced—gave a picturesque charm to the scene before him.

Finally his senses were overcome by a feeling of lassitude, and he slept.

Down a winding path from a small hut a short distance up the mountain slope, came a young girl with a small basket on her arm. When she reached the foot of the ascent her road lay in the direction of the ruined chapel. As she drew near it she was intercepted by a man in the dress of a rancher, who accosted her with the familiarity of an acquaintance. Their voices breaking suddenly on the profound quiet of the place aroused the stranger sleeping in the shade of the ruins. He heard a man's voice, with a strongly marked accent, say:

"What has become of old mother Jacinta that I see her no more?"

"She is quite sick; I have taken to her food and wine for many days," replied the girl.

"Do you think she may die, Paquita?" The man's tone was eager and excited.

"I cannot tell; she has trouble of the heart, and the least excitement may kill her."

"Caramba! She must not die, and take her secret with her. I must see her at once." He made a move in the direction of the hut.

"No, no, you cannot, Gaspard. Father Dominique is with her now. It is only a fool's fancy that she knows of any hidden treasure. That old tradition is but a fable, and the sooner you stop dreaming of it the better; surely you have enough of wealth already."

"Girl, you do not yourself believe what you are saying. Jacinta has gold; I have seen her use it. Why are you so good to her? You are deceiving me, and hope to get the treasure of which she holds the key."

"That is false! Do not judge others by your own bad heart. I have been a fool to waste words with you." She attempted to pass him, but he checked her, and, abruptly changing his manner of speaking, said:

"I have just come from your father, who has promised you shall become my wife soon; what do you say, Paquita?"

"That he is not my father, as you know, and my hand is not his to give—that I would die before I would become the wife of an Apache half breed!"

"Tate guarda! girl; you shall repent of this, for mine you shall be; I swear it!"

He grasped her by the arm, the look of a demon gleaming from his eyes.

The stranger, who had heard and seen all this thought it time to make his presence known. Half rising from his recumbent position, he drew his revolver and sent a ball whistling through the air just a foot above the ruffian's head.

As the report rang out the man released his hold upon the girl, leaving the marks of his cruel fingers upon her round, bare arm. As he turned to see from whence the shot had come he was confronted by the stranger, who, with his revolver in a significant position, said:

"Now go on your way, or my next shot will send a bullet through your brains, if you should chance to have any."

The man, although powerfully built and with the rage of a fiend in his breast, noting the bold determination in the face of the stranger, and, having no weapon at his belt, thought it the safest course to retreat. With a muttered imprecation he turned, and with quick strides was soon lost in the direction of one of the ranches down the valley.

The girl had by this time recovered from her fright, and stood before her brave champion a living picture of loveliness such as he had never before gazed upon. Her dress was of amber cloth, bound with a leathern belt at the waist, and revealing her neck and arms of perfect mold, around which fell a mass of dark rich hair far below her waist; an olive face of perfect contour, eyes of dusky radiance, teeth of milky whiteness gleaming between red lips that hastened to say, with a smile, as she extended her hand:

"Thanks, Senor, for your brave protection."

"It is fortunate that I fell asleep just here, or I should no doubt have been far up the valley ere this. Come, Senora, I will accompany you to your home, to beg some refreshment, which my more fortunate beast can find about the old ruins. Do you think that villain would have injured you?"

"I cannot tell, Senor. I have never feared him before. You overheard all that he said to me, I think? Well, he has long believed that old Jacinta knows the secret of the great treasure of Cibola that was concealed among its ruins two hundred years ago, according to the tradition that has been handed down. He has for years thought only of finding this gold—amounting, it is said, to fifty thousand dollars—and failing to do so has made him wicked and desperate. He imagines I am trying to gain some knowledge of it from old Jacinta."

"Have you ever before refused to become his wife?"

"Yes; twice before, Senor; but he would not take my refusal; and now if my father has promised me to him it is because he has been bribed to do so."

"Is the man not then your father?"

"No, Senor. I was left to their care when a child; they would never tell me by whom. But were the man indeed my father I would not at his bidding marry Gaspard, the half breed."

"Would they wish you to marry him if they knew of his savage treatment of you? Let me convince them that your life would not be safe."

"Oh, he is rich, Senor, and owns fine ranches and cattle. He promises to share his wealth with them when I am his wife; but I shall say nothing to them of my meeting with him, for I have not yet thought of what I should do if they try to force me into such a marriage. This is my home, Senor," she said, as they neared a small terraced house where the madre met them at the door.

"A stranger weary with travel would ask a night's shelter and some refreshment," he said, in answer to the woman's look of inquiry.

Supper was on the table, and he was invited in and made welcome. A bottle of fine wine was added to the repast, over which the padre plied him with questions as to where he had come from and where he was going. This much he learned:

His name was Harcourt. He was an Englishman with more leisure than he knew how to dispose of, and, having traveled Europe till he knew it by heart, was making a tour of the Americas. He had viewed the wonders of the "Great West," journeyed down the coast to South America, taken in the ruins of American Egypt and Mexico, and would soon return to England.

When the supper was over Paquita took him up to the terraced roof, where they sat in the moonlight while she sang some sweet Spanish love songs to the accompaniment of an old mandolin; and while she sang he fell to dreaming.

He imagined himself back in England, tired of society and friends as he had been before he left it. Then he fancied his mind coming back to this hour—to this voice—to this lovely girl, as a memory. Could aught in England ever impress him as did his present surroundings? Emphatically, no. Then why lose it all; or retain it as a memory only?

This girl was alone—was persecuted by a villian—perhaps in danger. Why not take her away from this place? Could he not learn to love her? Did he not love her already?

His questions were unanswered for the present—his dreaming at an end. He had been so absorbed by his own thoughts that the song and the singer were for a time forgotten.

"If you are tired of my music I will leave you, Senor; I promised Father Dominique to be at the mountain hut by nine. I left him with old Jacinta until my return."

"Pardon me, Senora, I am not tired of your music, I could listen to your voice forever; but you cannot go alone to the hut; let me accompany you?"

"Father will go with me as far as the ruined chapel."

"No, I will go. You forget that I left my mule and grip sack at the spot where I met you; I will fetch them back with me, and shall enjoy a walk in this rare moonlight."

They went down to the kitchen, where the madre had some things prepared for Paquita to take to old Jacinta.

ROSE LEIGHTON, ACTRESS AND SINGER.

When on the way, under the subtle charm of the moonlight, the musical murmur of the Rio Pescado, the faint note of a distant night bird, and Paquita at his side, Cyril Harcourt repeated to himself his last unanswered question—Did he love her already? His heart answered yes. He had met her but three hours before, but what mattered it, hours or years? He resolved not to look back with regret to the memory of this night, so he told her that he wished to make her his wife, and asked if she could return his love.

"I scarce know what love is, Senor. I have read of it and sung of it, but I cannot say that I will love you, for I do not know." And she raised her dusky eyes to him with the artlessness of a child.

"Tell me this, Paquita: Would you be willing to go with me to England, and leave forever all whom you have known here? And will you go as my wife?"

"Senor, there are none here who care for me. They would sell me to this half breed for a small share of his wealth. My life does not content me; why should I care to leave it? Yes, I will go."

"You trust me at least, Paquita, and you will soon learn what love is." He lifted her face for a moment, and left a kiss upon her pure lips; then they went up the mountain path to the hut.

He came back to the ruined chapel, secured his grip sack and found his mule grazing close by. He slipped his arm through the bridle rein and started up the valley, when he heard a step close behind him. It was the little priest, Father Dominique, who had come from old Jacinta's. He was both priest and doctor for all who needed him along the valley.

"How do you leave the old Jacinta, good father?" asked Harcourt, being deeply interested in what Paquita had told him of the old woman, which savored somewhat of romance.

"Ah, her trouble is of the heart, Senor. She may live a long time, or she may die at any moment; no one can tell. You are a stranger in the valley," said the priest, eyeing him furtively in the bright moonlight.

"I am, father; but a friend of Senora Paquitas. Do you think it safe for her to stay alone at the hut tonight?"

"There is nothing to fear, Senor. Paquita is a brave girl, and as good as she is brave. I have been her teacher since she was a child, and never knew her to fear anything."

They walked along in silence for a while, Harcourt debating with himself whether he should tell the priest of Paquita's encounter with the half-breed rancher, and his eagerness to see old Jacinta. On deliberation he decided not to betray the girl's confidence—which accident had thrust into his keeping—without her knowledge or consent. They talked of other things until they reached the home of Paquita, when he bade good night to the priest who lived farther up the valley.

The padre came out, brought some water for the mule and put it in a shed; then he took his guest into a little bedroom looking out on the terrace, and wished him good night.

After an evening of such strange and unexpected events, Cyril Harcourt felt little inclined to sleep. He sat down at his window and, gazing out along the moonlit valley, thought over all that had happened since he alighted from his mule at the old ruin.

But his mind continually went back to the half breed rancher. Would he not carry out his intention of seeing old Jacinto before it was too late, to wring this coveted secret from her, if she indeed knew aught of the treasure? If Gaspard should go to the hut tonight and find those two alone, what awful deed might not his savage nature, his anger and desperation prompt him to do?

He dared not disturb the girl's father and tell his fears, which he could not explain without betraying what he knew of Pequita's meeting with Gaspard. Even the priest had ignored the idea of danger. He sat an hour longer trying to allay his fears. He looked at his watch; it was almost one. He could bear the suspense no longer. He determined to go to the hut and cautiously listen if all was quiet.

He went stealthily out of the house and along the silent road to the old ruins. There he decided to remain and see that no one ascended the path to old Jacinta's. He seated himself on a low stone in the shadow of one of the walls, and, leaning his head upon his hands, lost himself in thought.

It was indeed true that when Gaspard went away with a muttered curse he determined to return that night, and force from old Jacinta the secret of which he had dreamed for years.

It was after midnight when he crept up the path to the hut, and concealed himself outside at the small open window, where by stealthy movements he could see and hear all that transpired within.

For a time all was quiet; then old Jacinta roused herself and began talking in broken sentences, at first unintelligible. Presently she directed Paquita to bring a small wooden box from an old cupboard, from which she took a small packet, saying, as she put it with trembling fingers into the girl's hand:

"Hide this, dearie—and read it—when old Jacinta is dead; not till then—not till then—promise me that."

"I promise you, mother Jacinta, I will do as you ask me," said Paquita, hiding the packet in her bosom.

Gaspard heard all this, almost choking with exultation to think the secret was so nearly in his possession. Only this girl's frail hands to keep it from him. She should never leave the hut until she had given it up; for there could be nothing else for Jacinta to give her but the great secret of the treasure.

But listen! What was Jacinta saying to her? Ah, she was talking of the hidden treasure. He listened breathlessly. He heard her tell in her broken, failing voice, how she had searched for it until health and reason were almost gone; until she was looked upon as old, crazy Jacinta, who wandered always among the ruins of Cibola. Six years before she had by accident stumbled upon the spot of its concealment, but had feared to take it from its hiding place, lest it should be taken from her.

"It is all for you, dearie. You have no one in the world to love you as old Jacinta loves you; but you shall have gold, dearie." She drew Paquita down and whispered one sentence in her ear; then raising her voice again, went on:

"You'll find it there Paquita—yellow gold for you, dearie. You wont forget the spot?"

"No, mother Jacinta, I wont forget it."

Gaspard had stood spell bound, listening to the confirmation of his belief in the existence of the treasure; but—what was this that made his breath come thick, and panting until it choked him? The secret of the wealth was not in the letter which Paquita had hidden in her bosom, but had been whispered in her ear—was locked up in this girl's heart and brain—this girl who had scorned him—who had called him an Apache.

He could no longer suppress his fury. Quick as thought he jumped to the window ledge and dropped into the room. He sprang to old Jacinta's side, and grasping her shoulder in his savage rage cried:

"Maldito, hag, tell me where the treasure is hid, or I will choke it from your throat! Quick! what did you whisper to the girl?"

"Gaspard! you will kill her. See! she is dying now," cried Paquita, terror stricken.

Her words were true. The sudden entrance of Gaspard, whom old Jacinta both hated and feared, and his insane clutch upon her frail body, had hastened the fatal moment, and her heart had stopped its work. She lay with glazing eyes set upon the demoniac face of the half breed—dead!

"Demon! murderer! what have you done! Now go; this is no place for you!" said Paquita, for a moment forgetting her fear of him.

He sprang suddenly towards her, grasped her by both her hands, crushing her to the floor, and drew a glittering knife from its concealment. A piercing shriek escaped the girl's lips as he said in a voice hoarse with concentrated rage:

"Curse you! Tell me what she whispered to you and give me the letter from your bosom or I will ——"

At that instant Cyril Harcourt stood at the window, a pistol shot rang out and the villain dropped to the floor, a long stream of blood oozing from his lips.

Harcourt entered the hut, lifted the half unconscious Paquita from the floor, and, with a muttered curse from the wounded villain following him, hurried out and down to the old ruins. She soon recovered consciousness, and they hastened up the valley and dispatched the padre to bring Father Dominique.

When the little priest heard what had happened he hurried to the ranch of the half breed for assistance to convey the wounded man home.

When old Jacinta's body had been consigned to the earth Paquita opened the packet she had given her, which contained a letter and a ring. The letter read:

"TALMEDA, MY CHILD—I am compelled to give you, while yet a babe, into the hands of fate. You are the child of a secret marriage, contracted while spending a year in America, with one who soon after met his death. Having no legal proof of the marriage, I can never claim you. I leave you to the care of an old Mexican woman, who was kind to me, and who, I trust, will place you with some kind people. I have given her a large amount in gold, to keep her above want, and leave for you the wedding ring of my ill fated marriage. When you are old egongh to understand this do not curse me, for the memory of this act will be a living curse to your unhappy MOTHER.

When Paquita had read this she felt only bitterness towards the mother who had abandoned her. She might never know to whom she was allied. Even had old Jacinta known, that knowledge was forever locked up in her grave. Better so, perhaps, since she could be nothing to her.

She took up the ring, an opal of extreme beauty in a circlet of diamonds. Inside were the words: "With love to Valmeda." Her mother's name and her own were the same, then.

She did not even slip the ring upon her finger, so great was her resentment to the mother who had so cruelly wronged her. She told no one of the letter save Father Dominique, requesting him to read it to the man she had promised to marry.

This new chapter in the past of Paquita's history was nothing to Cyril Harcourt. To him she was most beautiful, and he loved her. He was anxious to have their marriage consummated, and hasten to England; but Paquita insisted that he and Father Dominique must first go to the ruins of Cibola and discover if there was truth in Jacinta's marvelous tale, or if it was but an illusion of a half crazed brain. They started on mules, taking with them a small pick and some good bags for a possible need. When they returned they brought confirmation of Jacinta's words in the shape of golden coins whose dates were in the sixteenth century, proving beyond doubt that the old woman had indeed discovered the great treasure of Cibola, so long sought.

The money was considered as a legacy from Jacinta for Paquita, and the avaricious couple who had raised her claimed the lion's share. Paquita's kind heart did not fail to leave a generous gift for the unhappy Gaspard, who, under the care of the good priest, was likely to recover from his wound; and Father Dominique received enough to make him comfortable for life on the eventful morning when he pronounced Paquita (with a merry twinkle in his eyes) the wife of Cyril Harcourt—BARON MONTAGNON.

* * * * * * *

The matchless beauty of Lady Montagnon had for a year been the theme of all who knew her, when she met for the first time the Countess of Avoncourt, just returned from a trip through Europe. She was of Spanish descent—it was said—handsome and regal looking, but with dark, sad eyes, that never quite smiled, even when the lips made a pretence of doing so.

A party of friends had been invited to spend some weeks at the country seat of Lord Montagnon, and among them the Countess and her husband. A sudden shower had driven them all indoors one afternoon, and they were looking at books and engravings in the library. Some strange caprice of humor had made Paquita put on that day, for the first time, her mother's opal ring.

"Ah! Lady Montagnon, you have just such a ring as I would like to get for the Countess. Allow me to look at it one moment," said the Earl of Avoncourt.

Paquita could not refuse to give it to him. He handed it to his wife, saying:

"Is it not very handsome, my dear?"

The Countess took the ring and saw what the Earl had not seen, the inscription inside—"With love to Valmeda."

"I do not care for opals," she said, as with haste and agitation she returned the ring to Lady Montagnon, then turned deadly pale and sank into her chair. By a great effort she recovered herself, and cast an appealing look into the eyes of Paquita, whose calm face gave no sign. Lady Montagnno never wore the opal ring again, for bitter resentment had turned to pity for the sad eyed Countess —her mother.

JOHNSON & SLAVIN OPEN.

Inaugural Performance of Another Big Minstrel Organization.

[Special Dispatch to The New York Clipper.]

BRIDGEPORT, Ct., July 31.—A big crowd packed the Opera House last night to witness the inaugural performance of Johnson & Slavin's Minstrels. When the drop rolled heavenward the audience were surprised to behold an entire new front of scenery border and wings—all new and very handsome—and the impression gained that the management had at last newly embellished the stage and supplied the old, reliable "long felt want." In a moment, however, a full length portrait of Carroll Johnson was seen upon a tormentor wing, and Bob Slavin's figure appeared upon another, while a golden monogram formed of the letters "J. S." ornamented the proscenium border. We knew then that the scenery belonged to the minstrels. Back of the tormetors hung a handsome drop, representing rich drapery surrounding an immense picture frame, about eighteen feet by twelve. Behind this rose in rapid succession a number of paintings, illustrating the progress of minstrelsy. The first, "The Birth of Minstrelsy," was exhibited in the troubadours of the eleventh century, who are seen in a garden before a stately castle, with rich dresses, mandolins and appropriate music. "The Progress of Minstrelsy" is illustrated by an aged Welsh bard, with his harp and fair haired son at his feet. "The Rise of Minstrelsy" displays an exact and beautiful representation of Eastman Johnson's historical painting, "The Old Kentucky Home." With the disappearance of the scene the large drop and frame rise, disclosing "The Triumph of Minstrelsy," being the actual "first part." At the back of the stage and some fifteen feet high a practical balcony is draped with rich velvet plush, while from both sides, extending forward to the stage, are broad flights of carpeted stairs, with draped bronze ballustrades, surmounted by handsome candelabra. Between the stairs, on raised platforms, the orchestra sit, while vocalists and comedians extend across in a single row at the front. The dresses are of rich, light tinted silks of various colors, which blend in wonderful beauty The costumes are an amalgamation of the Court dresses of Louis XIV and the Regency, the vests and stockings being of pale blue and all wigs white, while the entire company are in black face. With the rich and brilliant costumes and surroundings, the black faces are in striking contrast, and the entire scene presents a most imposing appearance. The opening chorus introduces nine vocalists, with Harry M. Morse as interlocutor, and eight end men, with Hughey Dougherty and Jay Quigley in the places of honor. It also utilizes a set of church chimes and a large number of Swiss hand bells, and is not only original and quaint, but very catchy. The Crawford Brothers inagurate the excitement by a plantation song, ending with a grotesque dance, followed by "The Convict and the Bird," exquisitely rendered by Will Stephens. He is a newly acquired tenor, but his voice will rank with any in the minstrel profession. Then Dougherty and his famous "nickel plated" voice electrify the audience, which is followed by Harry Foresman's baritone solo, "If the Waters Could Speak as They Flow." This was beautifully rendered, as was Raymond Shaw's song, "I Will Return Again," previous to which, however, Carroll Johnson did great justice to "Halloo, Riley." He received five vociferous encores, and only gave up because he was utterly exhausted. The olio features were Fred B. Malcolm's character impersonations; a mammoth old time Southern plantation song and dance, and exquisitely dressed naval drill, transformed into a most intricate clog, with fine tableau, and during which Geo. C. Marshall executed a solo that has perhaps never been equaled in this city. Then came Bob Slavin, who began with a new and odd ditty called "Forever." From the ovation with which he was greeted, and the large number of encores he received, it seemed as if the audience truly wanted him "forever." The Selbini troupe of wheelers, with their recent imported addition, Fred Etolie, closed the olio with their familiar act. The burlesque, called "The Lost Ace," is a genuine novelty. It is elaborately mounted and costumed, full of fun, charming music, grotesque dances, and, above all, carries a good story. It seems the "Island of Pokah" is ruled by four aces, one of whom is lost, when the next best hand, the four kings, at once assume authority. Scene 2: Set waters. Big whale throws up an Irish drummer (Johnson), who compels the whale to give up his baggage—a wagon load of trunks. Drummer wanders about the island and meets daughter (Malcolm) of King of Clubs (Dougherty). Mutual love. Kings "get on." Trial of drummer. Verdict, guilty! Sentence, death at the stake! Drummer stripped, tied to stake and left to burn. Three lonely aces wander by. Drummer begs them to release him. "What are you burning for?" they ask. He tells them. They refuse to aid him, and depart. As they leave they pass behind drummer, when all suddenly fall upon their faces. They rise, quickly rescue drummer, take him down stage, turn his back to the audience, when lo! a big ace of diamonds appears in his back. He is the lost ace found. This restores the four aces, who dethrone the usurping kings, again assume authority, and all ends merrily. The actions, wit, situations and repartee are clever; in short it is a great afterpiece and a fitting conclusion to the fine entertainment. The company numbers forty people. After the entertainment which, by the way, passed off with absolute perfection, Messrs. Johnson and Slavin invited their company to a banquet, which lasted until late in the night, and in which "Piper Heidsick" played a leading part. A large delegation from New York, including W. H. Rice, Phil Irving, Wm. Black and other professionals, were present. P. T. Barnum and family occupied a box.

A THEATRE BURNED.

A Rousing Benefit to the Unlucky Owners—Manager McGuire's Plans.

[Special Dispatch to The New York Clipper.]

BUTTE, Mont., July 31.—The loss to the proprietors of the Grand Opera House, which was burned last week, will be about $50,000. The original cost of the building was $40,000, to which about $10,000 in the way of new scenery, furnishings, etc., had been added. There was only $9,600 of insurance upon it. Manager Maguire's personal loss, outside of a sixth interest in the Opera House, will come pretty close to $10,000, and on this he had no insurance. He had an extensive and valuable theatrical wardrobe, besides a fine library and three parlors richly furnished, including two pianos. Effort was made to save the furniture, but only a few chains, a sofa, and one or two pictures were got out. Arrangements for a benefit for Mr. Maguire are now under way, and it promises to eclipse anything ever before seen in this city. Besides the three halls where theatrical performances will be produced, the committee of arrangements has secured the race track for Aug. 4. The programme will consist of athletic sports, horse racing, and an outdoor performance by the Theatre Comique Co. The bar, restaurant and other privileges will donate the proceeds of the day, which promises to be one of great rejoicing among the people here. The Opera House will be rebuilt on a larger and grander scale, and every effort will be made to have it ready to open on Thanksgiving Day. [The Grand Opera House was burned July 29, as made known in Dramatic and Musical Notes on another page. The last performance was given by Gus Williams July 14. Mr. Maguire has leased the Renshaw Opera House, where he will play his bookings until the new house is opened.—ED. CLIPPER.]

RHODE ISLAND.

Providence.—Everything remains quiet here in amusement circles. The outlook, however, is particularly flattering, and the coming season promises to be unusually brilliant and prosperous. The regular theatres, all of which are now undergoing a thorough overhauling, will open in fine shape within the next four weeks, and the Providence public are to be congratulated on the fact that the rivalry between our managers will result in our having a class of attractions such as we have never had before. At the Sans Souci Garden, Dan Mason's "In a Fix," with Dan Mason, Harry Corson Clarke and Leonora Bradley in the cast, will hold the boards week of July 30. "The Two Widowers" closed a prosperous week 28. Week of Aug. 6, Scott's "Thrown Upon the World."

NOTES.—Your correspondent was invited July 27 to view the new drop curtain now being painted for Batcheller's Worcester, Mass., Museum, at Keith's Gaiety Opera House. The subject of the marine view, which forms the centre of the curtain, is a scene off the coast of Dover, Eng. The tall and rugged cliffs, upon which dash the foam crested waves, stand out in bold relief. Several small craft appear in the foreground, and the entire picture presents a study which, viewed in a proper light, should be decidedly pleasing. Fred Batcheller, the artist, is probably the most able of Rhode Island's landscape and marine painters.....Geo. Johnson, scenic artist of the Providence Opera House, is engaged in painting a new set of scenery for Keith's Boston house. Geo. Evans of Boston is to paint a new act drop and set of scenery for Keith & Jacobs' Gaiety Opera House, this city.....Polly Hulmes of Bryant and Hulmes is spending a few days at her home in this city.....The Burke Bros. left 24 for Atlantic City, N. JOHN P. HOGAN, whose portrait we present above was born at Montreal, Can., March 14, 1847, and made his professional debut with Stanley & Mason's Minstrels, doubling with John Prendergast as the Excelsior Bros., in 1864. In the Summer of 1865 they joined Ball & Fitzpatrick's Amphitheatre Co. at Albany, N. Y., in "Mazeppa." They joined Rainer & Christy's Minstrels in the Fall, but soon after were secured by Bryant's Minstrels at 472 Broadway, this city, where the two dissolved partnership. While here Mr. Hogan put on the Four Spaniards, with Prendergast, Master Tommy Ryan and Little Mack. After the Fall and Winter season closed, Dan Bryant went to San Francisco to put on his Irish dramas, and Neil Bryant took a minstrel company on the road, which included Mr. Hogan. In the Fall of 1866 he joined Dan Bryant again at Wallack's Theatre, this city, in "Shamus O'Brien." While there Mr. Hogan arranged and put on the Ruction Jig, including scenes at Donnybrook Fair, which proved an immense success, and enlisted the services of sixty couple. There also he brought out the Killy Kully Jig, introducing J. P. Hogan, Dan Bryant, Master Tommy, Ruey Hughes (afterwards a partner of Mr. Hogan's) and John Prendergast, who was especially engaged for the occasion. At the end of the season Hogan and Hughes joined hands and traveled together until Mr. Hughes died, in 1871. Their first engagement was with Budworth's Minstrels at the Fifth Avenue Opera House, now the Madison Square Theatre, this city, early in 1867, in a burlesque on the Japanese jugglers, Mr. Hogan playing Little All Right, of which he was the original. After this Hogan and Hughes joined Billy & Tony Pastor's Co. for the road, and traveled through the East. In the Fall they joined Hooley's Minstrels in Brooklyn, then went to Kelly & Leon's at 720 Broadway, and next to Bryant's New Minstrel Hall in Tammany Hall, now Tony Pastor's, for the season of 1868. After that they joined Buckley's Serenaders and toured the country. While in Chicago Mr. Hughes was taken sick with consumption and Mr. Hogan with inflammatory rheumatism. Before his recovery Mr. Hogan was secured by R. M. Hooley, and went South. After one season with Hooley's Mr. Hogan went to Philadelphia, where Mr. Hughes died in 1871. In 1872 Mr. Hogan joined the Chapman Sisters at 720 Broadway, and did a double song and dance with Ella Chapman. The next year he joined Hank Mudge, and in the following year, in partnership with Mudge, put a minstrel company on the road. In 1874-5 the two played dates. In 1876 Mr. Hogan again joined the Bryants and remained with them until Dan Bryant died, when he again took to playing dates. While with Bryant's Minstrels he doubled with Billy Emerson. His last engagement was with Alice Oates, playing Dorothy in "Robin Hood." After Dan Bryant's death he doubled with Charley Lord. In 1868 Mr. Hogan joined New York Lodge, No. 1, B. P. O. E., and has been a member ever since. During Mr. Hogan's career he gave dancing lessons to many well known performers, among whom were Aimee, Irene Ackerman, Cora Van Tassel, Emily Keen, the Wallace Sisters, Jesse West, et al. This season he will probably have a company of his own on the road, playing the small towns near this city. SOME NEW PRODUCTIONS.

"Florette," Seen at Atlantic City, N. J., for the First Time on Any Stage.

This is a comic opera, music by Thomas P. Westendorf of St. Louis, libretto by J. N. Fort of Philadelphia, and was produced for the first time at Howard's Pier, Atlantic City, July 19, by the Rising & Hamilton Opera Co., of which the librettist, J. N. Fort, is manager. The scene is laid in Virginia during the colonial history. The opera opens with the villagers decorating the home of Florette, in honor of her betrothal to Claire. After the opening chorus Lord Sage, the Colonial Governor of Virginia, who has been a widower for twenty-five years, puts in an appearance and announces to Claire that he has been single long enough, and wants to take a wife on the equitable distribution plan. The villagers who have gone off on their merry making are summoned, and his lordship's wishes made known. A plan is hit upon during the singing of a rollicking chorus, which enables Tom Tansey, who has been jilted by Florette for Claire to give Florette to Lord Sage as the chosen one of the plan. Polissa, the mother of Claire, with a woman's curiosity, examines Tansey's method and is the sequel to the plot. Florette and Claire, however, do not fancy the new turn of affairs, and determine to thwart his Lordship. Claire proposes that she shall feign madness. Sage, in order to get a free road to make love to his chosen bride, determines to send Claire on a governmental mission, and orders him to send Sir Upton Squills to prescribe for Florette's malady. Claire knows if such is done his ruse will be discovered, and therefore returns himself, disguised as Sir Upton, and repays Sage—in doctoring his gout—for depriving him of his sweetheart. After he has finished with Sage, he demands to see Florette alone, and discloses himself to her. Tansey overhears them and tells Sage. They (Sage and Tansey) seek him (Claire), and, on finding him gone, determine to send for him to return in order to repay him. Polissa overhears their plot, informs Claire, and this time he sends the real Sir Upton. The attempts of Tansey and Sage to get even with the real Sir Upton must be seen to be appreciated. However, everything ends in the stereotyped style, as Polissa, who had gathered the cards, discovered that the only card missing is that bearing the name of Margery Thorne, hence she was Sage's choice, and Claire and Florette are happy.

"Katti, the Family Help."

This piece is called a domestic farce in three acts, and is by Chas. S. Fawcett. It was originally done Sept. 30, 1870, at the Princess Theatre, Glasgow, Scot., and its first London hearing was Feb. 25, 1888, at the Strand Theatre. It is being acted this week at the Boston, Mass., Museum, for the first time in this country. The story of the play is: A retired army contractor, Finniher Fluffy, and his jealous wife have engaged as help an unsophisticated Teuton named Katti, who speaks broken English and has a weakness for putting her employer's crockery in the same condition. Mr. Finniher plays the clarionet. His successful efforts on that instrument awaken Katti's memories of her native land, leading her to fall in love with her master, which is pleasing though embarrassing to him. Katti and her master are discovered by Mrs. Fluffy in the act of osculation, and Katti is ordered to pack off. A letter arrives, declaring that Katti has come into a large fortune, and the tables are thereby turned. Mr. and Mrs. Fluffy have a son who is marriageable, and they at once commence to catch Katti as the desirable party; they invite her to dine with them, and otherwise endeavor to get in her good graces. Bob Fluffy has lost his heart to a danseuse and persecutes her after the manner of a stage door fiend, little dreaming that the lady has clandestinely married his uncle. The lady finds out that her persecutor is named Fluffy, informs her husband of the fact, and he immediately suspects his brother Finniher to be the culprit. The letter to Katti turns out to be incorrect, and she resumes her former position as family help and clears the tangles pleasantly.

PEOPLE'S THEATRE.—Announcement for July 30 and week: "London by Night," "Newport" drew well week of 26. Quite a scene was enacted night of 26. T. C. Whitmore, E. W. Trask and L. W. Walker invoked the aid of a policeman in removing Manager C. J. Wilson from the box office. The above gentlemen, in connection with Manager Wilson, constitute the syndicate owning and operating the house. The former gentlemen claim that Mr. Wilson has not been running affairs to suit them, and they will eject him every night should he insist upon taking charge of the box office. They have succeeded in getting into quite a muddle. Mr. Wilson claims that if there is any dissatisfaction the matter should be taken into the courts and passed upon, and objects to being forcibly ejected from a position which he claims to hold rightfully. The theatre will run, at all events, and continue to do as it does now—play to a paying business, with big prospects. Mr. Lipman will not leave, as was announced, but will continue in leading roles, assisted by Messrs. Stanley and Colton and Lizade Le Barron and George W. Cory, a recent acquisition. Mr. Coote is under engagement with a New York manager, and will shortly leave.

NEW YORK CITY.

Review of the Week.—The period of theatrical dullness continues. Last week the doors of twenty-two playhouses were closed. This was the list: DALY'S, the BIJOU, FIFTH AVENUE, LYCEUM, HARRIGAN'S PARK, ACADEMY, UNION SQUARE, TONY PASTOR'S, GRAND, NIBLO'S, PEOPLE'S, THALIA, JACOBS' THIRD AVENUE, WINDSOR, METROPOLITAN, BROADWAY, STANDARD, FOURTEENTH STREET, POOLE'S and all the vaudevilles save the NATIONAL. .....'Nadjy" at the CASINO, "Prince Methusalem" at WALLACK'S, Effie Elisler at the MADISON SQUARE, and German comic opera at TERRACE GARDEN were the continued bills. Miss Elisler played "The Keepsake" July 28 for the last time in her present engagement. "The Mikado" and "Orpheus" were the principal operas at the Terrace. "Nadjy" and the McCaull Co. are prospering.

DAVID BELASCO, H. C. De Mille and Fred Williams will be on the staff of instructors of the New York School of Acting next season.

THE season of German comic opera continues at Terrace Garden. Monday night, July 30, "Orpheus" was sung; Tuesday, "The Beggar Student"; for Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday, "The Grand Duchess"; Friday, "Fledermaus."

A HOLE IN THE GROUND CLUB will hold their Midsummer Night's Festival Aug. 9, at Weiskopp's Phœnix Park, One-hundred-and-forty-eighth Street and Third Avenue.

"NADJY" was sung for the seventy-fifth consecutive time at the Casino July 30. The theatre was decorated as usual. The house was quite large. "The Oolah" is announced for Sept. 17, to run until the new Gilbert and Sullivan opera is ready.

THE leading amateur clubs of this city, Brooklyn and Jersey City will play "Othello" at the Windsor Theatre Aug. 3, when Blanche Walsh will enact Desdemona for the first time. Stanislaus Strange will be the manager.

THE opening of "Mathias Sandorf," Bolossy Kiralfy's spectacle, at Niblo's Garden, has again been postponed until Saturday night, Aug. 18.

DRAMATIC EDITOR FRANKLIN FYLE, of The Sun, with his family, is at the West End Hotel, Long Branch, for the Summer.

THE obsequies over the remains of William M. Babbitt, who died July 22, were held 25. The service was a preliminary one, and was conducted under the auspices of New York Lodge, No. 1, B. P. Order of Elks. The body was afterwards taken to Taunton, Mass., where it will be interred. Among the members of the Elks who were present were George Conway, Frank Bowers, Joseph Conway, William J. Braddy, Gus Phillips, Robert S. Martin, J. J. Spies and O. M. Remington.

WILLIAM F. NORTON of Louisville has brought suit in the Supreme Court to recover $5,000 damages from Henry J. Pain, upon the claim that Mr. Pain made a contract to exhibit the "Siege of Sebastopol" in fireworks at Louisville, and failed to fulfill it. Mr. Norton has obtained an attachment.

OWING to the success of "Nadjy," the Casino version, in toto, will be produced at the Avenue Theatre, London, next October, under the direction of Richard Barker. The scene plot, costume plates, libretto and copies of the orchestration have been forwarded to London by Rudolph Aronson.

VERNONA JARBEAU was granted an order by Judge Van Brunt July 24, vacating a judgment for $100 obtained against her for advertising. Miss Jarbeau did not defend the action under a misapprehension, and the case will be tried again.

BUFFALO BILL and his Wild West contingency opened their final two weeks at Eradina afternoon of July 30. The show closes Aug. 11 and departs for Philadelphia, Pa., where a few weeks' stand will be made. The season on Staten Island has been a pleasant one, and business has satisfied those interested. No serious accidents have taken place, and everything has worked harmoniously, as it should with so able a corps of managers. The last two weeks should be gala ones in the history of this successful and extensive entertainment.

"NERO" is truly a potent attraction, and the crowds who attend the exhibitions given nightly at St. George, S. I., are well repaid for their visit to one of the most ambitious undertakings in outdoor spectacular theatricals ever attempted. Imre Kiralfy is decidedly proud, and justly so, of the success of his stupendous venture.

KOSTER & BIAL'S CONCERT HALL.—James Owen O'Conor's engagement continues. This unique actor has made a success of his peculiar methods here. The variety part of the bill this week is well sustained by Lizzie Daly, Richard Pitrot, Imro Fox and others.

THALIA THEATRE.—The work of renovating this old house is progressing favorably. The interior and exterior are being repainted. Part of the orchestra floor is being relaid and the gallery considerably improved. The stage has not been forgotten, for the sound of the hammer and saw can be heard from every corner, and the mass of scaffolding in all parts of the stage makes it almost impossible for one to thread his way across its vast area. The season will open Aug. 6, with "The Black Flag," at cheap prices. The trouble between Mr. Kramer and Manager H. R. Jacobs has, we are informed on good authority, been amicably settled, and the latter gentleman will manage the house this season.

NATIONAL THEATRE.—The warm weather of July 30 did not affect the attendance at this house. The programme called for Roach and Castleton, Murphy and Murphy, Charles Kirke in Chinese specialties, Hilton, ventriloquist, and John W. Ransone, assisted by the stock, in "Across the Atlantic."

ON Sunday last The Morning Journal, in a mood of good humor, swung into line and published "a campaign song with words and music by M. H. Rosenfeld." Unlike its contemporaries, however, that paper ingeniously steered away from the political main where danger lurked. Having assigned the author to confine himself to a subject that might involve a political question, yet at the same time be acceptable or non-acceptable to either or both parties, Mr. Rosenfeld set to work in the interests of Belva Lockwood, and produced the above song as "Belva, Dear, Belva, Dear." The Journal happily inscribed the composition to De Wolf Hopper.

MANAGER JOHN P. WOOD, proprietor of Wood's Opera House, Fayetteville, Ark., was a CLIPPER caller July 31. His season of 1888-9 is pretty well booked, he reports, and he is now enjoying his leisure in the metropolis. He has decided to play only one attraction a week. Thus far his new house has had abundant prosperity.

MADISON SQUARE THEATRE.—Effie Ellsler changed her play at this house July 30, presenting for the closing fortnight of her engagement a four act play by Frank Harvey, entitled "Judge Not." The cast: Philip Vane, an artist, E. H. Vanderfelt; Frank Brightside, journalist and novelist, Frank Weston; Lord Ferndale, F. C. Bangs; Rupert Derwent, his nephew, Fred Corbett; Little Philip, Master Vanderfelt; Servant, Harry Hogan; Lady Moreland, Mme. Ponisi; Ethel, her daughter, Helen Bancroft; Lady Chalmers, Mrs. Hart Jackson; Katherine Clare, an actress, Effie Ellsler. The house was large, though many professional occupied seats, and there was a deal of hearty applause for both play and players. The production must be credited with a popular success. Miss Ellsler's work as the wronged wife was careful and finished, and Frank Weston again made a hit by his peculiarly easy comedy efforts. Mme. Ponisi received an enthusiastic greeting, on her first appearance before a Madison Square audience. Mr. Vanderfelt, Mr. Bangs and Miss Bancroft deserve praise for their respective impersonations. The play was prettily staged, and there had been careful rehearsals, as the smooth performance attested. "Judge Not" was originally acted in England several seasons ago. Miss Ellsler will probably add it to her repertory for the coming season, and, with judicious revision, it will serve her valuably, we think. We are compelled, from lack of space, to defer a synopsis of the plot until a later issue.

J. M. HILL has arranged with Jos. Brooks to take the five weeks held by him for F. B. Warde at the Fifth Avenue, commencing Aug. 27, and will produce there "Philip Herne," with J. S. Haworth starred, and C. B. Welles, Sydney Armstrong, Joseph Wheelock, Bertha Welby, James Dean and others in the support.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Philadelphia.—There isn't much new in the theatrical line in Philadelphia. Things have quieted down for a rest, preparatory to the opening of the different houses for the Fall and Winter. New attractions are being announced right and left, and there will be nothing if not variety in the style of attractions to be presented to our theatre going public next season. The Grand Opera House and Casino have things very much to themselves at present, but within two weeks more several downtown houses will be opened, and they will certainly test the drawing powers of the uptown temples of music. There is little doubt, though, that they will hold their own. The ninth week of American opera proved as unsuccessful as the weeks that went before. There were three operas sung during the week—"Faust," "Fra Diavolo" and "Lucia," all of which were reproductions.....At the Casino, the second week of cheap prices was inaugurated with even better financial returns than the first week's. "Three Black Cloaks" was the opera, and it proved as good as "Pinafore."....Prof. Herrmann, the new lessee of the South Broad Street Theatre, came to the city July 30 to complete arrangements for the alterations to the house. A new fireproof proscenium will be built; the old stage will be torn out and a new one built, and the entire interior will be repainted. The seating capacity will be increased by the addition of several hundred chairs. J., and the Michigan circuit.

Williamsport.—At the Academy of Music, Ezra Kendall in "A Pair of Kids" will open the season Aug. 2, with prospects of a large house, to be followed by Wilson & Rankin's Minstrels 15. .....King & Franklin's Circus pitched tents at the Fair Ground July 24 to good business. The parade advertised to take place at noon did not make its appearance, owing to the high license, an ordinance passed 9 by our city dads claiming it worth one hundred dollars for a parade to pass over the streets. The circus people, wishing to let the public know they were in town, started out with a band wagon, but it did not get far before it was stopped by the police. In the evening two of the lumber city boys were out at the circus, and, while standing near the canvas, were accosted by two canvassmen and told to move on; but they did not move for a cent, and then the affair was made more interesting.

When completed it will make a cosy opera house.

Boston.—The new London comedy, "Katti the Family Help," received its initial performance in America at the Boston Museum, July 30. The complete cast was published in last week's CLIPPER. The piece is on for two weeks only, as Roland Reed is booked for a two weeks' engagement Aug. 13 in "The Woman Hater." Corinne closed her season July 28. A synopsis of the plot of "Katti" will be found elsewhere in this issue. The forty-eighth regular dramatic season at this theatre will be inaugurated Aug. 27 with a reproduction of "The Bells of Haslemere." Ed. Davenport will repeat his former impersonation of Frank Beresford. "Little Lord Fauntleroy" is underlined for its first American presentation Sept. 10.

OAKLAND GARDEN.—C. H. Smith's "Uncle Tom's Cabin" Co. began a week July 30. "On the lawn in open air," is what the ads. tell us the show is. If we get one of those characteristically rainy nights "Uncle Tom" will be done with a realism bordering pretty closely upon the sensational. The opera people drew decently last week.

THE MASCONOMO SHOW.—The long anticipated pastoral performance of "A Midsummer Night's Dream" in aid of the monument fund of the Boston Lodge of Elks on the lawn at the Masconomo House, took place evening of July 30. Here is the cast: Theseus, Henry Aveling; Egeus, Robert G. Wilson; Lysander, Eugene Moore; Demetrius, Charles B. Welles; Philostrate, John T. Craven; Quince, H. V. Donnelly; Snug, W. F. Owen; Bottom, N. C. Goodwin Jr.; Flute, H. C. Barnabee; Snout, J. B. Booth; Starveling, Charley Reed; Hippolyta, Mattie Earle; Hermia, Mittens Willett; Helena, Genevieve Lytton; Oberon, Louise Paullin; Titania, Marie Jansen; A Fairy, Lillian Lee; Puck, Little Mamie Ryan. My dispatch tells of the performance.

BOSTON THEATRE.—This house will open for the thirty-fifth season Aug. 6, with the first American production of "Mankind." The cast includes Forrest Robinson, D. J. Maguinnis, S. E. Springer, James Neill, Herbert M. Colby, J. W. Hague, Alf. Fisher, W. J. Wheeler, R. S. Finley, W. K. Sylvester, Geo. B. Bates, T. B. Howell, F. E. Jameson, C. A. Miller, Majorie Bonner, Gertie Boswell, Maggie Holloway, Rachel Noah, Grace Huntington, Blanche Mills. It has all been arranged by the management of the Boston, and Edmund C. Stanton, of the Metropolitan Opera House, your city, to give a season, a fortnight probably, of German opera in April, 1889. Anton Seidl will conduct, and Walter Damrosch will assist. "The Crystal Slipper" is an early Fall booking here.

GAIETY AND BIJOU.—The Gaiety Opera Co. continue to do a lively little business. Their third week began July 30 with "The Pirates of Penzance." The Viennese Female Fencers are loth to leave the Hub, and Manager Keith is as loth to have them go. They are big coin pullers for him. The specialists are: John Wright and Lotta Burns, Gies, Charles A. Mack, Parker Twin Bros., Paxton and Henderson, William Kenney, the Fitzgibbon Family, John Barker and the Gaiety Comedy Co.

WORLD'S MUSEUM.—Manager Lothrop has a list this week where there isn't a bit of room for insects to light upon. Here it is: Billy Courtright, the Cohans, Whippier Twins, Jennie Pickert, John L. Manning, Hi Tom Ward, Kelley and Holmes, Prof. Frederick, Lottie Burke, William Trainor, Walters and Drew, George A. Wilson.

GREAT OCEAN PIER.—Manager Pilling tells me that business has been pretty good with him at this charming resort. He certainly is booming the pier for about all it is worth, and it will be no fault of Fred. J. if he doesn't pan out a big boodle at the end of the season. Give him good, clear, hot weather and he'll get the people. He offered a capital layout Sunday night July 29, and every taste was catered to. "Life saving examplefied" by a dozen professionals natators was a unique object lesson that goes heavy. Prof. Phillips, phenomena worker, and Harry Waring, A. E. Folger, C. A. Washburn gave a capital Sabbath day entertainment. Monday evening July 30, a diamond prize carnival was held, and Thursday Aug. 2 Capt. Jack Crawford will give a Farewell Campfire.

JOHN L. SULLIVAN'S CIRCUS.—For just one week did this organization travel under the above name. Business was simply wretched all the while they were here. The beginning came when Mr. Doris retired. The climax occurred Saturday, July 28, when Mr. Holmes, of the Standard Museum, Brooklyn, N. Y., came over and wanted the show "done up" at once. He claimed to have leased all the stock, etc., to Mr. Doris. His Boston lawyers wired Mr. Holmes to come to the Hub and protect his property. He came and found the show in a sadly demoralized condition. No one connected with the management was around, both Messrs. Sullivan & Gray, who was thought to have put up the coin to run the show, being scarcer than hen's teeth. Finally Robert W. Stickney, the barebacked rider, clapped an attachment on the property through Constable Flint for back pay, and a second attachment was served by somebody else. A number of the boisterous employes who were looking for back pay were appointed keepers, and they packed up things ready to go to the next town billed, which nobody knew at all. It was the windup show of the Sullivan Circus.

PROMENADE CONCERTS.—These are confessedly the pleasantest entertainment in town nowadays. You listen to really beautiful orchestra music, and you hear some delightful singing in a cool, well ventilated, charming hall. Manager Ellis is to be congratulated upon his success, and Mr. Neuendorff needs no laudatory words at this late day for his truly admirable selections. The Apollo Quartet sang July 30, E. N. Lafucan was the soloist (cornet) July 31, Sig. Campanani, soloist (violin), Aug. 1, and H. C. Barnabee is billed for Aug. 2.

AUSTIN'S NICKEL MUSEUM.—This is our latest acquisition in the line of amusement enterprises, and if all I hear is true it promises to be a Jim Dandy in its way. And only a nickel, too, to get in! Certainly that is bringing popular prices down to a level of popularity that ought to attract the masses in train loads. The five cent place is to be located at Nos. 109, 111 and 113 Court Street. The date of the opening is as yet unannounced. I will write you fuller details next week.

REHASH.—Austin & Stone's Museum closed for four weeks July 28. It will reopen Aug. 27 under the management of the new firm, Stone & Shaw, who will also run the Westminster Musee..... Grand Rapids.—At Powers' Grand Opera House, Gormans' Minstrels come Aug. 4. Thatcher, Primrose & West opened their season July 26 to one of the largest audiences ever seen in the house. Standing room couldn't be bought at fancy prices, and hundreds of people were turned away. Those fortunate enough to get inside saw one of the newest, and, in point of costuming, most gorgeous minstrel shows ever witnessed here. The Shakespearian first part was a decided novelty, the costumes all being very rich, while the canopied tent of pink and blue satin completed a gorgeous and pleasing picture. The songs were all well received, with possibly a trifle more favor shown Fred Oakland's song, "That Melody Divine," and Johnson, Powers and Le Mack brought the first part to a close with a laughable act, "Dareyou vs. Hitme." The Clipper Quartet appeared in a new act, the best they have had for some time. Lond and continued applause greeted Barney Fagan and his sixteen grenadiers, beautifully uniformed, as they commenced "The Grand Review." The many new and intricate evolutions were executed with a correctness and precision that completely carried away the house. Mr. Fagan's uniform of white silk is a beauty. His other production, "Music and Its Charms," by W. H. West, Barney Fagan, Thos. Le Mack, Eddie Markey, Geo. Lewis, John Daly, Robert Gordon and E. C. McGee, four men and four young ladies, in handsome costumes, designed by Mr. Fagan, also scored heavily. They accompany themselves on musical bells, another new feature. George Thatcher was funnier than ever, carrying his own applause. The Bros. Byrne, European novelty, their American debut, are also a strong card. Entering in a carriage, drawn by a most life like "prop" horse, they commence their act by pantomimic movements, do a lightning crayon sketch which the mischievous driver spoils; they attempt to catch him in a screen with four pivotal doors swinging either way, but fail. Finally they start on their ride, the driver again becomes unruly, when a lively chase commences through, over and under their carriage, until blown up. An eccentric dance by two of the brothers should also be mentioned. Ed. Marble's "Wild West" closes the entertainment. A stronger and better show T., P. & W. never had, and I'm sure their business will easily warrant the money expended in having everything of the best. I should have mentioned Mr. Primrose's unique and pleasing English swell in the first part—a most finished act. For favors extended THE CLIPPER, I am indebted to Messrs. West, Marble and Manager D. W. Truss.

REDMOND'S OPERA HOUSE.—The Starr Opera Co. comes Aug. 13-25.

FOUND.—W. H. West lost a diamond ring while in bathing at Reed's Lake, but, after three dives, was fortunate enough to find it.....Mmes. Sumner Burroughs will manage Redmond's, under Brady & Garwood, with Sherman Wilson as assistant treasurer.....Smith's Opera House opens Aug. 13.

Mr. and Miss Cornwall will return to England about Sept. 1 to continue their studies. They intend to make singing their profession, and there is no doubt that they will get to the front ranks, having already had some very flattering offers. McNish, Ramza & Arno's Minstrels are billed for Aug. 21..... Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Chamberlain, late of the Ida Van Cortland Co., are visiting Mrs. Chamberlain's parents in this city, and are rejoicing over the advent of a little Chamberlain.

Jackson.—The elegant paper, advertising the advent of the Haverly-Cleveland Minstrels, was productive of a packed house July 25, and the efforts of Mr. Cleveland to furnish a first class entertainment have been crowned with success. The fun is fresh, fast and furious, the olio new and novel, and from first to last an immense success. .....C. E. Berch, late leading man with the Harry Webber Co., is home for the Summer..... Previous to going into regular rehearsal, Bob Barlow and W. E. Munger (tenor), of the Barlow & Armstrong Minstrels, will give a home talent minstrel performance, assisted by the Jackson profession now stopping here for the Summer, and about fifty amateurs who aspire to histrionic distinction.

East Saginaw.—At the Academy, Gormans' Minstrels are announced for Aug. 2, Dockstader's the following week, and then come McNish, Ramza & Arno's, and I predict a big business for all of them. Cleveland's Haverly Minstrels gave a good performance July 24, to a house packed from pit to dome.....At the Germania Gardens, the New Orleans Juvenile Opera Co. have been doing light operas to good business, and for little people they are surprisingly good. Blanch, a sister of little Rosina, made her first appearance on any stage that evening. Hattie Howard, who had just returned from Chicago, where she has been ill for the past nine weeks, pleased the house with several choice ballads. Ada Melville, a new comer on this side of the river, acquited herself creditably. All the lady volunteers received bouquets. Fort Wayne.—McNish, Ramza & Arno's Minstrels turned people away at the Temple July 26. It was their intention to open the season here, but the fact becoming known to rival organizations they opened at Terre Haute 24. Some new departures are made in the performance. Shortly before the curtain arises music is heard in the distance, and as the scene is disclosed to view the band, clad in Arab costumes, marches on the stage and its members take their station in a raised panoply. They are followed by the different members of the company, who seat themselves in irregular positions about the stage, thus completing what is supposed to represent an assembly of politicians, and called on the programme "The White House Serenade." Dan Quinlan acts as cross examiner, and Tom Donnelly (lobyist) sings "A Model Young Girl." Then the following people render the songs mentioned: Samuel Bradbury (Minister to England), "Twelve Years a Sailor"; John T. Linton (Assemblyman), "Love of Old"; Lew Benedict (Governor), "Keep Your Eye On It"; Fred Mathews (Secretary), "Nearing the Harbor"; Frank McNish (Congressman), "Big Sunflower"; Ted Francis (Speaker), "Night Birds Coming." The finale is a very funny burlesque on the late Sullivan-Mitchell fight, in which Frank McNish appears as John L. Sullivan; Jno. T. Keegan, Charley Mitchell; Lew Benedict, referee. Ramza and Arno follow in their well known pantomimic specialty and John T. Linton gives a pleasing exhibition of his vocapowers. Frank McNish does his "Silence and Fun" Tommy Donnelly appears as a comedian a la Will son, and McNish, Keegan, Donnlly, Diamond, Leahey, Gildea, Linton and Roston participate in a "Colored Fancy Ball." By far the best novelty they have is the Kryers, who do a wonderful dancing act in almost every conceivable position. [This was their American debut.—ED. TONY PASTOR is home once more, looking as brown as a berry and the picture of health. He speaks in the most enthusiastic terms of his stay abroad and the number of entertainments tendered to him. Mr. Pastor had no intention of appearing in public during his stay in London, but he did so under the following circumstances: He was an interested spectator one evening at the Cambridge Music Hall, and was introduced to the audience by Jenny Hill (the orchestra playing "Yankee Doodle" as he bowed to the audience). He responded thus: "I thank you for your kindly greeting, and when I return to America I shall not forget that I made my first appearance on a London stage at the East End." A testimonial was then presented to Mr. Pastor by "Pony" Moore. It was a handsome watch.

MINSTREL OPENINGS.—Our Fort Wayne, Ind., letter reviews the opening performance of McNish, Ramza & Arno's Minstrels; our Grand Rapids, Mich., correspondent details the first show given by the Thatcher, Primrose & West party; and our telegraphic reports contain a good description of the inaugural performance of Johnson & Slavin's Co. The brilliant send off given to the Cleveland Haverly Co., in Buffalo, has already been noted in THE CLIPPER. The leaders are all at it now, and the season of merriment is truly "on." May there be no disappointments.

A RUMOR prevailed in this city, as THE CLIPPER went to press July 31, that Charles O. Seamon was in trouble at Mt. Clemens, Mich. We hope it is not so.

THERE may be a confusion among the two "Fred Matthews" of the profession. One of that name is with McNish, Ramza & Arno; the other is the eccentric comedian engaged for the Austin Australian Novelty Co. One of the pair should use an initial, for purposes of identification.

THE people engaged for Duncan Clark's Female Minstrel organization are: Mlle. Marie, Wilson Sisters, Belle Cushing, Ada Gardner, Nellie Mordaunt, Annie Thomas, Ella Russell, Lizzie Hamilton, Florence Lee, Hattie Anderson, Amy Thompson, a troupe of Vienna Lady Fencers, Gibson and Miles, Trebor and Victor Clark.

DEATHS IN THE PROFESSION.

BARTLEY CAMPBELL died at the State Homœpathic Asylum for the Insane, Middletown, N. Y., at three o'clock, P. M., July 30. He was admitted to the asylum Nov. 30, 1886. He was then suffering from paresis, brought on by mental overwork. For a time he appeared to improve, the violent symptoms which had characterized the case being to a large degree overcome, and as he became quiet he gained in weight and strength. But the improvement was temporary, and for the last six months he had been gradually succumbing to the disease. He had been confined to his room for several months past, and for some weeks had not left his bed. None of his family was present when he died. The news of Mr. Campbell's death was a surprise to his friends in New York. About 6 o'clock one of his sons went to the Madison Square Theatre with a telegram, which urged Mrs. Campbell and her sons to go to Middletown at once, as Mr. Campbell was failing rapidly. By that time a dispatch had been received for A. M Palmer, who is the executor of the estate, announcing Mr. Campbell's death. It had been known that he had been growing weaker for the last two months, but his death was not expected. One of Mr. Campbell's sons is employed at the Madison Square Theatre, and the other is assistant treasurer at the Fourteenth Street Theatre. The remains will be taken to Pittsburg, where they will be interred in the family lot. The Actors' Fund will have charge of the funeral. Lack of space at the late hour THE CLIPPER received news of Mr. Campbell's death forces us to defer until next week a review of his eventful career as journalist, dramatist, manager and, betimes, actor.

In December, 1863, he re-enlisted as a veteran at Brandy Station, Va., and was commissioned Second Lieutenant by Governor Seymour, and afterwards Captain by Governor Fenton, thus gaining the distinction of being the youngest commissioned officer in the late war. He served during the entire war, after which he became an actor and manager. His body was brought to this city for burial. The funeral services took place from the Little Church Around the Corner July 24, the interment being in Woodlawn Cemetery. He was a member of New York Lodge, No. 1, B. P. O. The funeral services took place 26 from his late residence in this city, Robert G. Ingersoll delivering a short address.

He was about sixty-three years old.

MRS. Ed. L. LEE died of hasty consumption at the home of her husband's parents in Dayton, O., June 27. Prior to her marriage with Mr. Lee, she was known as Florence Hurlbert, and was the adopted daughter of W. H. Hurlbur and Irene Taylor, of Buffalo N. Y., and played character old women with her mother's company until the time of her illness. She died in a happy frame of mind, having recently joined the Grace M. E. Church of Dayton. MICHAEL LYNCH, whose demise was briefly mentioned in last week's CLIPPER, has been for the last five years a member of the Forepaugh Show. He was thirty-three years of age, and died at his home in Fall River July 21, after an illness of only a few days. Mr. Lynch had been associated for the last four years with Sid. Euson, under the name of Lynch and Euson, Irish scotch team. They have filled engagements in all the leading variety theatres of this country, and also visited Australia with the Cooper & Baily Co. "Mike" (as he was familiarly known) was a kind hearted, lively and congenial companion, for whom every member of the company had a kindly feeling. He was a strong, hearty, vigorous young man, and when he left the company for his home with the remark that he would be with them again in a few days, no one dreamed that they should never see him again; and only a few days after, when his partner, Mr. Euson, received a telegram announcing his death it cast a gloom over the entire Forepaugh Co. A collection was immediately made, and one hundred and thirty-five dollars expressed to his wife to defray the expense of the funeral. His death was caused by a severe attack of typhoid fever and a slight stroke of paralysis.

Farrell Answers Nikirk.

The challenge issued by Ed. Nikirk of Pittsburg, Pa., has elicited the following pointed reply from Steve Farrell:

NATICK, MASS., July 28, 1888.

EDITOR N. Y. CLIPPER—Dear Sir: I see Ed. Nikirk has posted $50 with a Pittsburg paper to run any American a half mile. Now I have twice challenged Nikirk and put up my money at THE CLIPPER office for a half mile race, and he knows, if he wants a good straight race, where to look for it. I do not propose to put any of my money up in a Pittsburg paper office, neither will I ask him to put his money up with any paper here. I am looking for a straight race, and if he puts up his stuff at THE CLIPPER office he will be accommodated.

S. J. FARRELL.

JOHN R. SMITH of Jersey City and William Nunley of Newark, N. J., opened the shuffleboard season at the former place on the evening of July 26. They played a match for $25, home and home, 150 points at each place, Nunley winning the first half by a score of 150 to 138. The final instalment is to be contested at Nunley's, in Newark, on Thursday evening, Aug. 2. A. Portman is to play the winner on Aug. 9.

HARRY M. JOHNSON is stated to have, in a trial made in the presence of a number of members of the Missouri Amateur Athletic Club, on the grounds of that organization, on July 23, run fifty yards in 5⅘s. He allowed Hitchings of the club a start of eight yards and beat him by three yards. If this reported performance is susceptible of verification the time is the best on record, beating Johnson's former time of 5⅖. That is drawing things pretty close.

A LACROSSE MATCH is to be played between the Calumets of Chicago and the Pullman's on Aug. 11.

THE OLYMPIC ATHLETIC CLUB of San Francisco Cal., have decided to send the promising sprinter V. E. Schifferstein east to represent the club at the championship meetings of the National Association and the American Athletic Union. John Purcell, the runner and jumper, whose fame has been achieved in Ireland, but who is now a member of the Olympic Club, will accompany him. Both are now in active training at the Oakland Athletic grounds, Schifferstein having resigned his position in a wholesale clothing house in San Francisco in order that he might devote his whole attention to training. An entertainment was to be given by the club some evening this month, probably at the Grand Opera House, the proceeds of which are to be devoted to paying the expenses of the trip. Besides the championship meetings, it is the intention of the Pacific Coast representatives to compete at the games of the Staten Island and New York Athletic Clubs, and at the championship meeting of the Canadian Association. Schifferstein has a record of 10s. for the 100yds., and 23ft. 2½in. for the wide jump.

GUS GUERRERO desires us to state that he will not compete in the seventy-five hours race at Troy, nor the seventy-two hours race at Saratoga next week, for both of which events he has been mentioned as among the entries. He is at present training for a fifty miles race with George Cartwright, to take place at the Brighton Beach race course, on which occasion Gus will attempt to beat the record. If he succeeds, it is understood that Gus will be $1,000 richer. He exercises on the track daily. Cartwright is also in training on Coney Island, Jack Varley accompanying him in his "walks abroad."

NEW JUMPING RECORD.—A remarkable jumping feat was accomplished at Kidderminster, Ireland, on Saturday, July 14, in the presence of an immense gathering of people. Darby, the champion jumper, appeared in public for the first time, and established a world's record in jumping a succession of twenty jumps, in which he covered the extraordinary distance of 88yds. 6in., being 8ft. 6in. beyond anything previously accomplished. He was equally successful in some other performances, and was enthusiastically cheered.

A. A. C.—The events to be decided at the Fall meeting of the American Athletic Club on the club grounds, Metropolitan Park, One Hundred and Eighth Street, East River, Sept. 1, are as follow: 100yds., 300yds., half mile and one mile handicap runs, one third mile run for novices, a mile and a half handicap walk, and 220yds. hurdle handicap. Entrance fee, fifty cents for each event. The rules of the Amateur Athletic Union will govern all events.

THOSE old antagonists on the running path, William Cummings and W. G. George, again met in a mile race at the St. Miren's Football Club grounds, Paisley, Scotland, on July 14. George was leading on the fourth lap, and there seemed no chance for Cummings, but the latter persevered, and, putting on a great spurt in the straight, he got past and won by a couple of yards, in 4m. 25s.

JOE ACTON and Arthur Chambers met with a royal reception at the hands of the Pacific coast athletes, and were entertained at a banquet at the Maison Doree by the Olympic Club officers, July 17. The former was at last accounts training at Barney Farley's, on the Ocean House road, for his wrestling match with Jimmy Faulkner, the latter taking his exercise regularly at Saucelito.

CHAMPIONSHIP OF THE WEST.—A meeting was held at the Grand Pacific Hotel, Chicago, Ill., recently, at which it was decided to hold an athletic meeting there on Sept. 1, to decide the championship of the country lying west of the Alleghany Mountains. The meeting will be under the auspices of the Amateur Athletic Union, and is intended as an offset to that to be held at St. Louis.

THE National Amateur Lacrosse Association of Canada on July 28, at a meeting of the Committee of Management held in Montreal, fined the Cornwall Lacrosse Club, champions of the Association, fifty dollars, and suspended them for the season for intentionally defaulting from a scheduled match. Charges of professionalism have also been preferred against the club.

BOWLING.—The following elections took place in Newark, N. J., during the past week: National Bowling Club—President, J. Zwich; vice president, M. Bachman; secretary, G. Herpich; treasurer, L. Nusbaum; captain, L. Miller. Standard Bowling Club—President, F. Dorl; vice president, J. McCoy; recording secretary, Charles Scheihing; financial secretary, Charles Schlegel.

E. C. CARTER and lady returned from England on board the Etruria on Saturday, July 28. At last advices Gus Sacks and H. M. Banks were slight see ng on the Continent.

ED. MOULTON, the veteran sprinter, and a local runner named Grogan ran one hundred yards at Pueblo, Col., July 21, for a purse of $400, which the former won by eighteen inches.

C. R. HUNTLEY defeated William Hough at Aberdeen, Dak., July 25, the distance being two hundred yards.

W. J. BROOME, an Australian sprinter, ran one hundred yards against a colored man at Williams, Cal., July 16, winning easily.

Sport at Pittsburg.

The Summer meeting at Exposition Park, Pittsburg, Pa., commenced July 17. Class 2:17, for pacers, purse $800—Sam Keys' Charley Freel first, in 2:24, 2:24, 2:26¾; Harry Z. second, and Kinsman, the only other starter, distanced in the third heat. There were five heats trotted, but the fourth was declared off, as none of the horses were evidently driven to win it. Class 2:20, purse $600—Emma first, Black York (won the first heat) second and Jersey Boy third, Patsy Clinker being distanced in the fourth heat. Time, 2:25½, 2:25½, 2:20¼, 2:23¼.

Racing Abroad.

The Kempton Park (Eng.) Handicap, for three year olds and upward, by subscription of $50 each, $10,000 added, $500 to second, a mile and three quarters, was won, July 21, by W. Blake's Exmoor, by Westminster, 5—129; Tommy Tittlemouse, 6—98, second; Admiral Benbow, 3—98, third. On the same day the race for the Kempton Park International Two Year Old Handicap, $5,000, of which $500 to second, $250 to third, five furlongs, was decided. It was won by Sir R. Jardine's Leap Year, by Skylark, with Whitehall second and Seclusion third. The second Summer meeting at Sandown Park commenced July 26, when the Surbiton Handicap, for all ages, $2,500, five furlongs, produced a memorable race. C. J. Merry's Deuce of Clubs and Sea Song, both carrying 111lb, twice ran a dead heat, and at the second attempt at running off the former won. Sly Shot was third. On the following day the principal event of the meeting was decided. This was the rich Eclipse Stakes of $50,000, with $2,500 in addition for second, for three year olds and upward, about a mile and a quarter, which was won by the Duke of Westminster's Orbit, by Bend Or, 3—124; Ossory, also by Bend Or, 3—127, second, by a length; Martley, 4—136, third, by the same distance. The other starters were Enterprise, Florentine, The Baron, Elridspord, Love in Idleness, Dewentwater, Estafette, Nina, Bright Star and Patchouli. On the same day the National Breeders' Produce Stakes, $5,000, five furlongs, was won by Capt. Machell's Italica, with Present Alms second, and Royal Star third.

GOING TO ROME.—The stallion Atlantic, by Almont out of Isabella Clay, who at the late meeting at Pittsburg, Pa., made a record of 2:21, and showed a private trial of 2:17, has been sold by Andy Welch of Hartford, Ct., to Signor N. Muncie of Rome, Italy, for $15,000. He has also purchased the bay mare Volkore, by Volunteer Star out of Corbeau, for $9,000. Both horses have been shipped to the Eternal City, where they will be kept for breeding purposes.

TWO TROTS took place at the Guttenburg, N. J., track on July 27, with the following result: Sweepstakes, $75, mile heats—C. Davidson's Dan first, Etelka (won the first and third heats) second, and Golddust third. Time, 2:59¼, 2:55¼, 3:02, 3:00¼, 3:01¼. Match, $100—W. H. Roller's Johnny B., beat P. Allegaert's Wauseca (won the first heat). Time, 2:55, 2:59½, 2:58, 2:58¼.

ARRANGEMENTS have been made for a trot on Aug. 2, at the track of the Cleveland Driving Park Company, between W. J. Gordon's Guy and Dan Denoyelle's Fred Folger, for $2,000 and a silver pitcher, the latter offered by their breeder, Charles Bachman of Stony Ford, N. Y.

THE Leicestershire Summer Handicap, for three year olds and upward, $125 each, $5,000 added, one mile, was run for at Leicester, Eng., on July 25, and was won by the favorite, J. Lowther's King Monmouth, by King Lud, with Woodland second, and Mosspaul third.

THE trotter Blizzard, six years, has been purchased by T. A. Disbrow of this city from Peter Goode of Goshen, the stated price being $1,000.

R. L. L., Cleveland.—A card in THE CLIPPER would no doubt bring you what you wish.

F. A. W., Brooklyn.—You had better not try. The road is long, and there are too many obstacles in your path.

Mrs. R. R., Pittsburg.—Address a letter to him care of THE CLIPPER. It will be advertised gratis, and he will probably send for it.

J. E. L., Duluth.—Letter has been referred to Col. Brown.

C. V. or H. H.—1. Send for catalogue to Dazian & Co., or Shannon. Miller & Crane, whose cards appear in THE CLIPPER. 2. The sum you name is very modest.

JUGGLER.—1. Average $40 a week. 2. From $30 to $40. 3. It is a trick, of course.

M. J. K., Schenectady.—There was an exhibition of that sort in this city some years ago.

W. L. G., Brooklyn.—John B. Jeffery of Chicago, and H. C. Miner of this city, publish such guides.

L. A. C., Evansville.—We prefer not to publish information as to the private lives and domestic relations of professional people.

H. S. O., Brooklyn.—An answer to your very pointed query would not avail you much, for it would be merely an expression of individual opinion. We prefer not to express ours. Yours might be just as good, and yet not the same.

B. J., Memphis.—See head of this column.

E. S., Massilon.—Both are in demand when each is a clever performer. The salaries would range from $25 to $90 a week, according to the artist's ability.

D. P. JR., Danville.—We believe it is not, but further than that we do not care to say. See answer to "L. A. C., Evansville."

W. A. G., Eureka Springs.—1. "Under the Gaslight," Aug. 12, 1867, at the New York Theatre, with A. H. Davenport, J. B. Studley, Rose Eytinge and Blanche Grey in the cast. Revived at the same house Dec. 4, 1867, with the Worrell Sisters in the cast. It was first done at the Grand Opera House April 14, 1873. We cannot spare the space for further details, which would, in connection with the questions you ask about Mr. D., require a column or more room.

READER, Cincinnati.—Answer next week. An exhaustive search of our files renders this delay necessary.

P. J. S.—Answer next week.

F. E. B., Cleveland.—There is no "general" or even average salary. All the way from $15 to $75 a week. The employe's ability and the employer's purse govern the matter.

BASEBALL, CRICKET, ETC.

B. P., Toledo.—You will have to wait until the close of the season, when the official averages appear, in order to find out the pitcher having the best record in any of the professional associations.

J. E. A., Richfield Springs.—1. The Troy Club was a member of the National League from 1879 to 1882, inclusive. 2. Keefe, now of the New York team, was one of the pitchers of the Troy Club in 1881 and 1882.

E. H. T., Trenton.—The protest should have been made at the time, and would only be valid in the event of the umpire misinterpreting the rules. No answers by mail.

A. H. K. J., Coudersport.—1. The man who was then at bat comes first to the bat in the next inning. 2. Yes. 3. Peter Conway played with the Buffalo team before being engaged by the Detroit Club.

G. P. C., Galt.—Some umpires decide that the batsman is out if a fair hit ball bounds back and hits him. Umpire Valentine thus decided a similar case in the game between the New York and Pittsburg Clubs on May 15 last. We are of the opinion that you were correct in deciding it to be a foul ball.

C. E. P., Muskegon.—Yes.

J. C. S., Staunton.—1. A, of course, wins. 2. The Continentals win by the score of the fifth inning, viz., 6 to 0.

F. S. C., Austin.—A wins. Ehret won the second game in which he pitched. The other game was virtually lost when he went in to pitch.

J. M., Brooklyn.—1. Boyle caught for the St. Louis Browns in forty-four consecutive championship games last season. 2. See Turf Answers.

A. N. S., Trenton.—The bet is off on account of the Detroits not playing that day.

F. W. H., Greenleaf.—The base runner is not out. The ball must be held by the fielder after touching him.

R. Xeenah.—He is a professional player, and his club is a professional one. 2. Amateurs do not receive any pay, directly or indirectly, for their services.

DOCTYPUS, Allentown.—1. Prof. Proctor and other scientists have published articles explaining the principles involved in curve pitching. 2. The Scientific American of Sept. 15, 1883, has an article on curved pitching which would convince any unbeliever.

BILLIARDS, POOL, ETC.

P. G. M.—1. No. 2. Yes. 3. No.

F. M. S., New Haven.—The decision of the referee must be final. The fact that the referee had also placed wagers upon the game has no bearing either way, as both players, according to your statement, were aware of that fact and he was mutually permitted so to act.

ATHLETIC.

J. G. R., Winnipeg.—The Sheffield handicap rule bearing on the matter reads as follows: "No objection will be entertained unless made by 6 P. M. on the first day's running, and the person making such objection must deposit the sum of £5 in the hands of the proprietor, and should the objection not be sustained, the money deposited shall be forfeited, and go towards paying expenses, to be decided by the proprietor and the committee."

WEST SIDE A. C.—Better address the gentleman himself in our care. We have not the data to refer to.

S. McG., Pullman.—We could not make use of it.

F. J. D., Brandon.—Unless one party bet that a certain club would win outright, and the other party bet that it wouldn't, then the wager is a draw, and each bettor gets his money back. Turf law does not govern other sports in this country.

AQUATIC.

J. C. B., Newark.—In the race between the steamboats E. E. Lee and Natchez, from New Orleans, La., to St. Louis, Mo., in 1870, the former won in 3 days, 18 hours and 14 minutes. She arrived at her destination at 11.00 A. M. July 4.

L. F., Alexandria Bay.—For accurate information on the subject address Norman L. Munro, publisher, this city.

E. B. W., Salt Lake City.—The Atalanta, New York Athletic, New York Rowing, Metropolitan, Nonpareil, Gramercy and other boat clubs are located in this city. You can address the secretary of any of them in care of THE CLIPPER.

A. L. S., Providence.—The fastest passage from Queenstown to Sandy Hook is 6d. 1h. 55m. by the steamer Etruria of the Cunard Line. She sailed from Queenstown on May 27 last and arrived at Sandy Hook on June 2.

TURF.

M. E., Barnwell.—The Suburban Handicap in this country is always run at the track of the Coney Island Jockey Club, Sheepshead Bay.

H. B. C., Lynn.—The following horses have trotted twenty miles in an hour: Captain McGowan, John Stewart, Trustee, Lady Fulton and Mattie Howard.

W. H. S., Newark.—When Jack Stewart trotted twenty miles in 59:22 he went to wagon. He has trotted twenty miles in harness in 58:59, at Oakland Cal.

CARDS.

O. W., Concord.—Yes. It applies to both. If you looked at the face of your cards, or even raised them from the table, you lost.

M. J. M., Buffalo.—Yes. No. 2 would then be entitled to the stakes.

ROCKLAND, Rockland Lake.—Yes, unless otherwise specially agreed.

CONSTANT READER, Trenton.—Certainly. He is at liberty to bid its entire worth, no matter how or whom it may effect.

J. H. C., Castleton.—In euchre the highest ace is for the time being the one that is of the suit which happens to be trump. In draw poker all the aces rank alike. The mistigris is a special card (sometimes designated the "joker"), and special rules are used to govern it upon its introduction in the game of that name. A is slightly mixed concerning its use and its value. According to the specific terms of the bet B wins.

J. J.—The player who held aces, according to your statement. The two pair man passed out of his own accord, and thereby lost all interest in that pot.

CONSTANT READER, Willis.—You were right.

J. H. M.—1. 2 and 3. Yes and no. This merely answers your queries as asked. You need to give a more detailed statement of the circumstances leading to the dispute involved. The duties of arbitration are certainly onerous enough without inflicting also the burden of conjuring up the minute particulars of a disputed point upon which we are either purposely or indiscreetly left in the dark.

CONSTANT READER.—Not necessarily. You need to make another statement, however, giving full particulars of how the misdeal was brought about. The mistake can easily be rectified, if we only know the details.

E. B. F., St. Louis.—The elder hand scores the point for game.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Z., City.—If a divorce has been granted to the husband for adultery, the wife is prohibited, by the decree, from marrying again in the State where the divorce has been granted during the life time of the husband. But she may, after a lapse of five years, petition the court, providing she has conducted herself properly, that the decree may be modified, permitting her to marry again.

C. A. C., Omaha.—1. We do not know the address of any such person. 2. No charge is made for any information conveyed through this department.

W. S., Providence.—No nation can justly be said to rank highest in all three. Each branch finds a special home.

D. R., Cleveland.—No statistics within our reach enable us to answer your question. You had better get an official answer. Write to the Department of Agriculture at Washington.

C. R.—Both partridge and quail belong to the same family of perdicæ. They differ slightly from the grouse.

E. M.—1. Letters are advertised but once. 2. No. 3. We do not care to return letters. 4. About $1.00. Rand, McNally & Co., 323 Broadway, New York.

E. H., Allegheny.—Write to John C. Haynes & Co., Court Street, Boston.

J. A., Morden.—Such a shot is distinctly permissable.

CHESS.

To Correspondents.

REV. J. T. C CHATTO, London.—Thank you for the compliment and attention, but we feel obliged to say that our exchange list is all we can manage at present.

"IRISH SPORTSMAN."—Thanks for the very marked compliment with which you are pleased to favor us.

"SOCIAL CRANKS."—Glad to know you like the idea, and will tackle it.

CHAS. DEVIDE.—You are appointed and hereby commissioned psychologician in chess to THE CLIPPER'S chess column. So, when you see something in a psychological light that admits of being treated psychologically, just psychologize it and add it to your list of psychologies, and other pleasant things.

BRO. HERVEY.—Will you kindly favor us with a copy of the brochure recently issued by your State Ch. Association?

CAPT. MACKENZIE has gone to compete in the Scottish national championship tourney, which will finish in time for him to go on to Bradford, to enter the great international congress of the B. C. A. It's totally superfluous, but we'll say it—our warmest wishes for his personal enjoyment and chess triumphs follow him. The Captain isn't a man that says much, but when he lands a chess thrust on a fellow

"The good sword stands a handbreadt out,
Behind the [victim's] head."

BRITISH CHESS ASSOCIATION.—A complete programme of the forthcoming international congress at Bradford has been issued, and the Hon. Secretary is amply justified in saying: "We have every reason to expect a numerous assembly of talent and a successful meeting." No less than nine special items of attraction are severally set forth, which may be summarized thus: 1. The piece de resistance, the International Masters' Tournament; entrance, £2; deposit, £3; six prizes—£60, £50, £40, £30, £20 and £10, and the entrance fees divided among the non prize winners, by Prof. Berger's system. 2. Amateur Championship Tourney for the "Newnes B. C. A. Challenge Cup," four prizes; 3. Tennyson Competition; 4. Ruskin Competition; 5. Amateur Championship of Yorkshire, first prize, the "Fattorini Trophy;" 6. Second Class Tourney for Yorkshire; 7. Third, do.; 8. International Problem Tourney; 9. Banquet. And after all that, we suggest one important omission, which the Germans appreciate—10. One full day off, with some pleasant, social excursion. If less than ten entrants, two rounds; if ten, or more, only one; twenty moves an hour; time of play, 11.30 A. M. to 4.30 P. M., and from 6.30 to 10 P. M.; drawn games score ½ to each. Hon. secretary, L. Hoffer.

WHITE.
White to play and give mate in two moves.

Game No. 1,650.

As is well known, the result of the personal contests between Capt. Mackenzie and Dr. Zukertort in their various tournament encounters has been somewhat in the Captain's favor, and the last Chess Monthly gives the following grand battle fought to a draw.

and even now the studious reader may like to examine for himself why White, with a P more, can only draw so we make the position our Enigma.

(a) If Q P ✕ P, avoiding an isolated double P, was preferable.

(b) The Schachzeitung recommends 17. Q to K 5.

17. ... then K B to K 2 | 20. K E to Kt 3 | K B to Q 3
18. Q Kt to R 5 | Q-K Kt 3 | 21. Q ✕ P +, etc.
19. B-B 3 | R-Kt 5 (?) | (?) Wherefore? We would suggest for Black 19. K B to Q 3, winning at least the exchange.

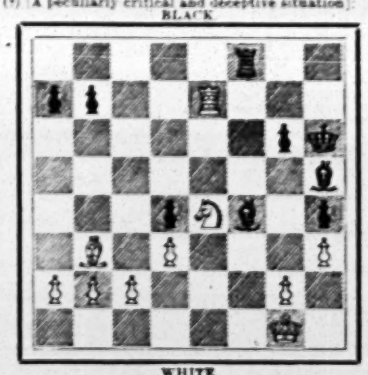
(c) [A diagram gives this position due prominence]
BLACK (The Doctor).

WHITE (The Captain).

Move made—22. Q R to K 5. The beginning of an interesting end game, in which White relies on the superiority of Pawns' position, Black, on the strength of his Bishops.

(c) To K 4 would probably be more efficacious.

(?) [A peculiarly critical and deceptive situation]:
BLACK.



WHITE.

Move made—32. R to K B 7. If R ✕ P, then:

32.	K B to K 6 +	36. K to R 2	Q B to B 6
33. K to R 2	R-K B 8	37. R-B 7	R-Kt 7 +
34. P-K Kt 4	P ✕ P en p +	38. K-R sq	R-B 7 +
35. K ✕ P (1)	R-Kt 8 +	39. K-Kt sq	R-Q 7, wins.

(1) If 35. Kt ✕ P, R to B 7 +; 36. K to R sq, B to B 6 +, etc.

(d) White endeavors in vain to get a decisive advantage by his extra P.

(1) Black plays the recognized best defence vs. these odds.

(c) Preferable to P to Q 5, which would temporarily drive back the Kt; but Black could then break the advanced centre by P to Q B 3, and P to K B 4.

(f) Creating a weakness, only to prevent Kt to B 5.

(?) Unnecessarily complicating a well developed position. Considering the state of his health, Dr. Z. might have selected a more simple continuation.

(g) [Even now there was a better line of play]:
WHITE (Mr. Wainwright).

BLACK (Dr. Zukertort).

Move made—20. B P ✕ P. He could have saved the piece, e. g.:

20.	B to B 6 + (2)	22. K ✕ Kt	P to K B 5
21. Kt ✕ B	Kt ✕ Kt	23. B ✕ Q B P	P ✕ B, and thought a P minus, the Bishops being of a different color, Black might have had chances for a draw.

(2) Obviously 20. Kt to B 6 would not save the piece, because of the continuation 21. R P ✕ R, Kt ✕ K; 22. Q B ✕ Kt, P ✕ K P; 23. P to Q B 4, etc.

(3) 23. K P ✕ P would still have saved the piece; for, if White plays 24. B to B 4, P to K Kt 4; 25. B to his 7, R to Q B sq, and the B is lost. These omissions clearly indicate a falling off which the Doctor himself felt; for he remarked afterwards in our hearing: "Now I shall win no more games."

(h) Looks like a fine move, but is not so; for if 28. Kt to B 2, to attack P by 29. R to K sq, Black would reply 28. R to Q B 4, strengthening his centre. The remainder is very well played by Mr. W. Black could not save it any more.

SCITE AN CH. CONGRESS.—All true lovers of American chess will feel genuine elation at the report in the last Columbian Ch. Chronicle of the status of this previously assured gathering, by far the greatest event in the annals of the game on this Continent. The preliminary committee is now organizing for its permanent work, will soon be ready to receive the pledged subscriptions, and go on with the scheme to completion. The very first thing the committee found on its hands to do was to notify those generous princes of the chessboard, Messrs. Judd and Turner, that the sum to be guaranteed was already only about $450. It is now suggested that a plus sum of $2,500 may be looked for. Grumblers, wrens, pessimes and prophets of evil must stand abashed at the exhibitions they have made of themselves in the great public murror of success now held before them. They hadn't truly gauged either the caliber or the staunchness of the men whom they essayed to override. "Nothing succeeds like success," saith the quaint, antithetical philosophy. The aim was high, and the success is commensurately great and gratifying. The hitherto lukewarm may now be expected to come to the front with cash and plaudits. After war, peace; after the storm, calm; after the detestable turmoils of a presidential campaign, the knightly contests and loving victories of Caissa's tilting lists.

THE EQUINE STAR.—Perhaps we would better have said the rising sun. We gave Mr. Young's opinion of Boston's youthful champion without comment, and now take pleasure in reproducing Bro. Huntington's comments on that letter, also without comment. He says: "Though Mr Young displayed the right spirit in this liberal praise of his rival for chess honors in Boston, we consider the statement contained in the quoted extract to be a very extravagant and impulsive one. We ourselves have the highest and most hopeful anticipations for the future position in the chess world of Mr. Barille, but at present, until he has had the opportunity of testing his strength with fine players outside our "party burgh," it is certainly unwise to place our chess idol on too exalted a pedestal. Mr Barille himself deprecates this unsought honor of being rated on an equality with such accomplished masters as Herr Steinitz and Captain Mackenzie."

CHECKERS.

To Correspondents.

HENRY PHILLIPS.—The strongest player in the Western portion of the United States is, probably, Percy M. Bradt of Wisconsin.

HIRAM FERRINS.—Mr. Smith will, no doubt, give Mr. Barker "more to do" than Mr Martins did, as Smith's nerves are younger than those of Martins, and will not be so liable to be "shaken" by "Barker's tactics."

GEORGE HAMMOND.—Your solution of Position No. 17, Vol. 36, is not sound.

WE have examined two drawn games, played in an exhibition, at Christ Church, New Zealand, between Wylie and Boswell. The games should have both been won by Boswell.

WE LEARN from that indefatigable gleaner of checker news, The Woonsocket Reporter, that Messrs. Smith and Barker have signed articles for a match, to begin on Dec. 24, next. The match is to be restricted, and to consist of thirty two games, wins and draws. In the first fourteen games, each player having the Black seven times, must make the seven possible first moves. The object of the restrictions is to prevent the monotonous repetitions of the old stereotyped openings, which Barker so dearly loves to indulge in. This match will create a more lively interest than any since Wylie crossed swords with the great "Wizard of the North," Andrew Anderson.

THE latest news from New Zealand gives Mr. Wylie 3,455 wins, 195 draws, and 7 games lost. The score for Canterbury is 992 games. Out of that number Wylie won 959, lost 2, and drew 31. This may be very pleasant amusement for the people, but the "champion of the world" must find it somewhat monotonous.

Match at Typewriting.

The first typewriting match that has ever taken place in public occurred at Graham's Phonographic Academy, Cincinnati, O., on July 25, the contestants being Frank E. McGurrin, official stenographer of the Federal Court at Salt Lake City, Utah, and Louis Traub, of Cincinnati, each of whom put up $250 on the result of the contest. The conditions were that the whole time to be occupied in writing was an hour and a half, forty-five minutes of which was devoted to writing from dictation and forty-five minutes to writing from copy read by the operator. It was agreed that the matter to be written should be the ordinary court proceedings, selected by the judges and new to both operators. The judges were Norman F. Dean, Edwin M. Williams and Buchanan Perin, well known Cincinnati stenographers and typewriters. The judges also acted as timekeepers. McGurrin used a Remington machine, while Traub operated the caligraph. It was evident that Traub could operate faster than his machine would respond, and he was to that extent placed at a disadvantage. Owing to the compactness of the Remington keyboard, McGurrin was enabled to copy without looking at the keyboard at all, and he could have taken the dictated matter nearly, if not quite as well blindfolded. He displayed marvelous speed, and won the purse. At the end McGurrin had written from dictation 4,294 words, or 95.55 words per minute; from copying, 4,415 words, or 98.11 per minute, making a total of 8,709 words. Traub wrote from dictation 3,747 words, or 83.26 per minute; from copying, 3,191 words, or 70.91 per minute, his total being 6,938 words. McGurrin beat Traub on the whole time 1,771 words, or 25.38 per cent.

Rowing on the Kills.

The annual regatta of the Kill Von Kull Rowing Association has held off Staten Island on Saturday afternoon, July 28. The weather was very pleasant but the fresh wind that was so welcome to the spectators rendered the water very lumpy. The distance in each of the contests was one mile, straightaway, starting off Port Richmond and finishing at the club house. The officials were: Referee, Harry McMillan, Schuylkill Navy; timekeepers, J. H. Abeel Jr. and Chas. T. Munn; judge at finish, S. E. Hazard. The racing was very good, taken as a whole, and in the senior singles a most exciting finish was witnessed, the result being a dead heat, which, unfortunately, the lateness of the hour prevented being decided at that time. As there were only half a dozen events on the programme, and the referee's boat left the Battery, this city, at 12 o'clock, noon, this does not speak volumes for celerity in working off the races, which is the worst that can be said about the management of the regatta, which was thoroughly enjoyed by the spectators, especially by the lady guests, who were as numerous as usual at the regattas of this association. In the junior four oared race the crew entered by the New Jersey Athletic Club failed to get to their station in time, and the race was very properly started without them. The races resulted as follow:

Pair oared gig—Arthur Kull Rowing Association, D. G. Bartlett, Eugene Bartlett (stroke), John Fountain Jr. (coxswain), first, in 5m. 48s.; Staten Island Athletic Club, C. R. Armstrong, F. O. Spedden (stroke), E. W. Gould Jr. (coxswain), second, by two lengths.

Senior single sculls—H. W. Janssen, Staten Island Athletic Club, and John W. Shreve, Alcyone Boat Club, rowed a dead heat, in 5m. 54s., and the row over was postponed till some future date.

Four oared barges—Staten Island Athletic Club, J. Whitehorn (bow), C. F. Hart, R. Conyngham, August Miller (stroke), E. W. Gould Jr. (coxswain), first, in 5m. 49s.; Clifton Boat Club, Gregory McLean (bow), H. J. Wright, A. D. Wright, Ferdinand J. Ficker (stroke), David Marsh (coxswain), second, in 5m. 56s.

Junior single sculls—A. H. Walton Jr., Staten Island Athletic Club, first, in 6m. 16s.; James B. Cameron, Alcyone Boat Club, second, in 6m. 25s.; James R. Breese, Alcyone Boat Club, third, in 6m. 34s. This was Walton's initial appearance in a race, and his clubmates look for something out of the ordinary from him in the future.

Junior four oared shells—Arthur Kull Rowing Association, W. G. Armstrong (bow), W. K. Ballantyne, J. P. Fiske, J. Gleckner (stroke), first, in 6m. 2s.; Alcyone Boat Club, Wm. Gartley (bow), Edward Burke, Bickel, John Heine (stroke), second, in 6m. 13s.; Staten Island Athletic Club, Edgar Hicks (bow), Charles Whitehorn, Thomas A. Morgan, R. T. Smith (stroke), third, in 6m. 17s.

Eight oared shells—Staten Island Athletic Club, J. L. Doherty (bow), F. O. Spedden, C. R. Armstrong, J. P. Whitehorn, C. F. Hart, R. Conyngham, F. G. Janssen, H. M. Janssen (stroke), first, in 6m. 23s.; Arthur Kull Rowing Association, J. C. Carberry (bow), J. H. Chumar, J. A. Hand, W. D. Delamater, D. G. Bartlett, E. Bartlett, W. B. Walker, S. L. Bartlett (stroke), second, in 6m. 37s.

Steam Yachts Racing.

Half a dozen big steam yachts competed in the fourth annual regatta of the American Yacht Club, held on Saturday afternoon, July 21, over a course from off the club house at Milton Point, on the Sound, to and around Stratford Shoal Light and return, a distance of about eighty miles. The weather was pleasant, and a goodly number of steam and sailing vessels were on hand to see the start, which was made at noon, the yachts going over the line in the following order: J. A. Bostwick's Orienta, W. M. Starbuck's Tillie, Geo. S. Scott's Stranger, W. M. Singerly's Restless, Joseph Stickney's Susquehanna, and E. M. Field's Inanda. After they had become dim objects in the distance, the members of the club and their guests turned their attention to the creature comforts which are always pleasing features of these annual events, and the discussion of which occupied a considerable portion of the period during which the racers were out of sight. Upon returning to the starting point, after the lapse of sufficient time, as was thought, for the contestants to reappear, the committee found that the Orienta had met with an accident to her machinery after being out less than an hour and a half, and had been obliged to abandon the race and return to the stakeboat. It had been expected that the big yacht Susquehanna would prove the winner, but in this her owner and friends were disappointed, as the eventual victor was the Stranger, which reached the finish point more than six minutes ahead of the favorite, with the others well nigh distanced. The order and time of the start and finish was as follows, the actual racing time only being given:

	Start.	Finish.	Actual Running.
Orienta	12h. 00m. 01s.	Did not finish.

The Centreboard Abroad.

The subject of allowing centreboard yachts to take part in the open events held in British waters is still engaging the attention of foreign yachtsmen, and there is a growing feeling in favor of their admission. A meeting of the council of the Yacht Racing Association was held at the Langham Hotel, London, on July 11, at which the question was taken up. The committee previously appointed made no direct recommendation to the council on the matter, but furnished the following abstract from the replies received from the clubs to whom circulars had been sent regarding the question: Twenty-seven clubs are in favor of admitting centre boards without restrictions—viz: Royal Ulster, Royal Yorkshire, Royal St. George, Royal Western (England), Royal Alfred, Royal Clyde, Royal Harwich, Royal Irish, Royal London, Royal Northern, Royal Torbay, Royal Portsmouth Corinthian, Royal Cork, Royal Plymouth Corinthian, Royal Largs, Royal Engineers, Royal Dart, Royal Albert, Royal Barrow, Mudbook, Medway, Erith, Clyde Corinthian, Isle of Purbeck, Brightlingsea, Corinthian and Medina. Of the foregoing clubs the Royal Alfred never debarred centreboards, while the Royal Plymouth Corinthian and Isle of Purbeck already admits them. Six clubs favored admitting centreboards, with certain restrictions, viz: Royal Dorset, Royal Thames, Alexandria, Solent, Royal Cornwall and Royal Forth. Six other clubs are opposed to their admission, viz: Royal Southern, Royal Southampton, Royal Mersey, Royal Yacht Squadron, Castle and Cheshire. A number of other clubs were not heard from regarding the matter. The following letter was received by the secretary from G. L. Watson, the designer:

"SIR: I do not think a clause fixing a minimum depth at all necessary for those who know what they are about, as I feel sure an extremely shallow centre boarder would be of no use as a racer, especially in these waters, but it may be a useful enough guide to amateur yacht designers. I have been thinking over what I said about weighted boards at the Royal Clyde Yacht Meeting, and I fear this proposal, too, savors of grandmotherly legislation; and, although it is undoubtedly a necessary restriction, it may handicap us severely in racing with the yachts of other countries who are left with open hands as to centreboards. However, were any one building a centreboarder for America, he would no doubt take advantage of all latitude given by American rules. The rule need be on a sliding scale, fixing the weight of board in a ratio with the rating. I do not see that there is any objection to admitting centreboards into our races. I do not believe that they are faster than properly designed keel boats, and, if they are, the sooner we find it out the better. There is possibly one objection to admitting centreboarders, viz., that in the larger yachts a man building a keel vessel might be forced into adopting a greater draught of water than is convenient, thus rendering the yacht comparatively useless for cruising, and spoiling her chance on courses such as the Solent or Thames. G. L. WATSON."

It was proposed and seconded "that Rule 8 be expunged." A lengthened discussion followed, and ultimately the motion was carried nem. con. It was decided that a special general meeting should be called to consider and adopt, or otherwise, the recommendation of the council, on Aug. 1. A letter was read from the New York Yacht Club stating that a challenge would be accepted for the America Cup upon the conditions which governed the Genesta and Galatea races, provided assurance were given that the club winning the cup would adopt the new deed of gift dated 1887. The letter was ordered to be recorded.

Race Between Launches.

The cup offered by Clement Gould, of the American Yacht Club, was raced for by naptha launches on July 28. The course was on Long Island Sound, eight miles, starting from off the club house and steaming as far as a stakeboat anchored off Execution Light and return. Thirteen boats took part in the regatta, of which the only ones provided with cabins were Governor Leon Abbett's New Jersey and Martin Saunders' Wanderer, between which the race was close all over the course, the latter proving the faster boat and making the eight miles in 1h. 4m. 30s., being the fastest time in which the course was made by any contestant, and just twenty-three seconds less than the New Jersey occupied in covering the distance. Neither won the trophy, however, that being taken on time allowance by the Lookout, whose actual sailing time was 1h. 9m. 50s. The Plover was second, her actual sailing time being 1h. 9m. 19s. The winner is owned by J. R. Hegeman.

FAST STEAMING.—The steamer Etruria of the Cunard Line arrived at the bar at Sandy Hook at 12.30 P. M. on Saturday, July 28, having made the passage from Queenstown in 6d. 3h. 15m., which is second only to her former fastest trip westward. Her greatest run in twenty-four consecutive hours was 496 knots, being the same distance that the Umbria of the same line steamed May 7, 1887. The Etruria accomplished it on the sixth day out. On the third day she covered 490 knots. The vessel is commanded by Captain Cook, who on this trip for the first time flew the blue ensign of the British Royal Naval Reserve, in which he was recently appointed a Commander.

THE Lake George (N. Y.) Yacht Club elected the following officers on July 26: Commodore, James B. Henry; vice commodore, H. B. Moore; secretary and treasurer, Charles Warren. The club have arranged for a steam yacht race on Aug. 16, over a twelve mile course, between boats owned by H. B. Moore and the Aoyer Brothers, the latter being a new craft. The loser is to pay the expenses of a number of friends who are expected to go from the metropolis to witness the race, and also provide a banquet to be served in the evening.

FEMININE ROWISTS.—A double scull race, in which the contestants were ladies, took place at Lake George, N. Y., on the afternoon of Saturday, July 28, three crews taking part. The distance was uncertain, and the contestants finished in the following order, no time being taken: Mrs. E. A. Roessle and Miss Marie Preston first, Mrs. L. A. Nicholls and Miss Emelie Preston second, Miss Mary Taylor and Miss Rose Preston third.

SWIMMING RACE.—A swimming race, open to all amateurs, for three prizes, took place at Bowery Bay Beach, L. I., on Saturday afternoon, July 28, under the management of Prof. Donaldson. There were seven starters, and the winner was John Marion of Williamsburg, in 32m. 6s.; Peter Burns of this city second, and William Reuss, also of the metropolis, third.

THE City Point Yacht Club of Boston, Mass., elected the following officers last week: Commodore, Richard Coleman; vice commodore, P. W. McDonough; recording secretary, William F. Perry; financial secretary, J. M. McKay; treasurer, J. F. Welch; fleet captain, John Boyce; measurer, George Oegler.

W. F. CONLEY and J. W. Kennedy have each posted $100 for their sculling match, and the last deposit, of $150 from each, is to be posted on Aug. 8. Both men are in strict training, Conley on the Charles River at Boston and Kennedy on Lake Quinsigamond.

GEORGE LEE easily defeated Hugh D. Wise in a scullers' race, for $500 a side, three miles, with a turn, at Toronto, Ont., July 26. The Canadian was the favorite, and he led for some distance, but proved the inferior oarsman. The time was announced as 20m. 17s., which is fast enough for Lee.

THE Beverly Yacht Club sailed another regatta on Saturday, July 28, off Monument Beach, Mass., only members of the club being eligible to compete. The race was sailed in a gale, was very exciting, and the winners were: First class, Surprise; second, Mist; third, Eleanor; fourth, Wink.

THE Sippican Yacht Club held an open regatta at Marion, Mass., July 25, twenty six yachts starting in five classes, and the winners being: First class, Zingara; second, Mucilage; third, Mist; fourth, Daisy; fifth, Rena.

THE second race for the championship of Barnstable Bay took place off Provincetown, Mass., July 26. The distance was twelve miles, and the winners were: First class, Madcap; second class, Iris.

THE Life Guards stationed on the beach at Atlantic City, N. J., are to compete in a swimming contest for several cash prizes on Aug. 3. The purses are given by the citizens.

The New York Club's Chance for First Place Fully Discussed.

[Specially Reported for The New York Clipper.]

NEW YORK, July 28.—When in the history of the national game has the interest in baseball reached such a pitch in this city and vicinity as is the case at the present time? Certainly not since the palmy days when the old Atlantic and Mutual Clubs were in existence, can one remember seeing so much enthusiasm displayed. The announcement of a meeting between the Atlantics and Mutuals was enough to bring together an immense concourse of spectators to the old Capitoline Grounds, Brooklyn, or the Elysian Fields, Hoboken, N. J. The excitement ran high in those days, and there are few persons in these two great cities who can recall those meetings without a certain degree of local pride for the abilities of his favorite team. Each club had its host of admirers, and the partisan feeling would be very bitter at times. Yet those days have heretofore been dismissed with a deep sigh as a thing of the past, never to be witnessed again. This might have been the case had not the New Yorks struck such a burst of speed during the past few weeks, which has landed them to the front, and has revived an enthusiasm equal to, if not far greater than that of the olden times. The New Yorks are now running a neck and neck race with the big Detroit team for first place, with every indication that they will soon pass their strong Western rivals. The New Yorks are making a great record for themselves. A world's championship series between New York and Brooklyn would bring together an immense crowd of people. It must be admitted that the Brooklyns' chances for first place are not so encouraging as they were several weeks ago, but still the team is not so far behind the St. Louis that another week may not see it in the lead again.

There are many persons in Brooklyn who are asking the question: Why don't the management pitch Caruthers and Foutz more than they do? When one is pitching let the other play right field, and vice versa. Probably the answer the club would make to the above query is: "How could we pitch Foutz while Orr was away with his injured knee?" Well, admitting that to be true, it is not too late to begin now. Keep those men in from this out, and the results will certainly be brighter than they now are. Keep the other pitchers in good practice in case either Caruthers or Foutz should become disabled. Both men are good batters, and that is what is needed as much as anything else to win games. This fact has been proved beyond doubt in the case of the Athletics. Had that club one more good pitcher and catcher it would be an easy thing to predict where the next American Association champion team would be located.

That two pitchers can do good work if kept regularly at it has been fully demonstrated in the case of Keefe and Welch. From fourth place these men have landed the club at the top of the list. I do not want to be understood as saying that it was the pitchers alone who placed the New Yorks where they are, but it was their excellent pitching ably assisted by the rest of the men. Keefe and Welch are certainly doing great work in the pitcher's box, and deserve unlimited praise. Yet there are plenty of persons predicting the downfall of the New Yorks in case either Keefe or Welch should show signs of weakening. There is time enough to worry when such a thing does occur. Nothing is more discouraging to a team than to continually hear the home patrons making disparaging remarks about its playing. Encourage the men all you can when at home, for they meet with all kinds of obstacles when away from home. It is also a good plan not to criticise the home team too severely when it is losing, or when it again strikes a winning gait it will feel that your praises are of the fickle-minded order.

Ewing's great work of the past few weeks seems to have hardened his hands and put him in excellent condition. Unless he is seriously injured he will do most of the catching from this to the end of the season. His continual playing has encouraged the other men to do their best to win. Ewing has been troubled with a soreness in one of his legs, but he does not allow it to interfere with his catching when the team really needs his services. It was to this cause alone that he retired from his twenty-ninth consecutive game, and missed the one on the following day. He was, however, on the field and took part in the last game of the series with the Philadelphias. He felt that he was needed, and therefore went in and did his work as only he can. Ewing well deserves the title of being the king of all catchers.

The remainder of the men are in the best of condition, and are playing in a manner that must convince even the most skeptical that their chances for the pennant are as good as any team in the National League. The New York Club seems to have struck it just right when it obtained Arthur Whitney. He is playing in excellent form. His work is of the highest order and fully in keeping with that of any other man on the team. He was at first considered very weak at the bat, but of late he has proved himself able to hold his own with the remainder of the team in that respect. Whitney is fast becoming popular with the local public. It looks as if he has come to stay.

M. J. Slattery has recovered from his injuries, and has reported for duty. It is not known whether or not he will resume his place on the team. He is a fine batter, sure catcher and a very swift runner. When given a trial, he proved himself able to hold his own in the company he was traveling in. Undoubtedly he is a fine player, and should be given every opportunity to develope.

Ed. Crane astonished even his most sanguine friends on July 27, by his fine pitching against the Philadelphias. It is believed by many persons that if he was given a fair chance in the box, that he would soon develope in a fine pitcher. He is a heavy batsman, and would be a good man to have regularly on the nine. In case any one of the pitchers were being freely batted, he could be brought in without having any objection raised.

Mike Tiernan has again got his "eye" on the ball, and the way he is pounding out safe hits is rather discouraging to visiting pitchers. The croakers were not slow in giving it as their opinion that Tiernan had been batting in great luck, simply because he failed to do any great slugging during the first few games after the return home of the team. However, as Mike is what is known as a good reliable batter, he makes hits when they are most needed, even if they only net him one base at a time. Tiernan is chasing Connor pretty closely for the lead in batting of the home players.

EDWARD HANLON, DETROIT'S CAPTAIN AND CENTRE FIELDER.

Edward Hanlon, captain and centre fielder of the champion Detroit team, whose picture is here given, is noted for his wonderful running ability. He is also considered by good judges a sure catch of any fly ball he can reach, and many the long and apparently safe hit has been spoiled by his fleetness of foot. He is one of the leading base runners of the National League, and the way in which he carries his 170lb around the bases is a surprise to all catchers. Hanlon is a New Englander by birth, having been born at Norwich, Ct., Aug. 22, 1857. He first came into prominence in the baseball world in 1876, as a member of the once famous Rhode Island Club, of Providence, R. I., which captured the championship of New England that season. The Rhode Islands gained considerable notoriety during the season of 1876 by playing a seventeen inning game with the Tauntons. While with the Rhode Islands Hanlon played third base, short stop and change pitcher. He filled the same positions for the Fall River (Mass.) Club in 1877. Hanlon started West in 1878 and brought up in Rochester, N. Y., where he remained during that season, playing third base for that team, which was a member of the International Association. He remained with the Rochesters until it disbanded, when he joined the newly organized team hailing from Albany, N. Y., and continued with that organization as its left fielder until the close of the season of 1879, gaining an extended reputation by his hard hitting, and also by his excellent work in his new position as an outfielder. In 1880 he played left field for the Cleveland Club, that being his first season in the National League. His work was of the highest order, and both the Cleveland and Providence Clubs made a bid for his services for the following year, 1881, but he signed instead with the new professional team of Detroit, Mich., and has creditably filled the position of centre field ever since. Besides being a fine fielder and great base runner, Hanlon is a good batsman and an earnest and hard worker. But his chief forte lies in the way in which he handles the Detroit nine. The wonderful success of that team is as much due to the way Capt. Hanlon manages his men as to any other cause. He knows the strong and weak points of his men, and therefore is always prepared in a case of emergency. His record as a professional player has been a most creditable one. May it never be blemished!

The Brooklyns will have their hands pretty full during the coming week with the Cincinnatis and St. Louis Browns. They will have to play ball for all it is worth, but as the club contains the material to do so it is more than likely good results will be obtained this week. Brooklyn has an excellent opportunity to regain first place, and it is hoped it will take advantage of it. The Brooklyns have lost most of games this season to the weaker teams, and this through poor batting. They should have taken three straight games from the Kansas City during the series just finished, but weak batting at critical times tells the story. In speaking about that series reminds one that considerable hard feeling and still more talk was indulged in against Jimmy Peeples, because he made several wild throws in the first game. Yet, when it comes down to the result of the errors made he was personally responsible for only one run, that being the first one the Kansas Citys obtained, and at that time the score stood five to one in Brooklyn's favor. Then in the next two innings Kansas City went in and earned six runs on clean batting, yet had the Cowboys won that game Peeples would have been held personally responsible for the loss of it. As it was he caught a very good game. He had fifteen chances and accepted eleven of them, his muff of a third strike and then wild throw to first base being his only damaging errors. In the next game, which the Brooklyns lost, the Kansas Citys scored three unearned runs on errors by Smith, Caruthers and Radford. Yet nothing is said about that. Too much fault finding when a player happens to make a few errors is not the best thing to do.

Bushong is without doubt one of the best catchers in the American Association. He handles one and all pitchers with as much ease as though he had always been accustomed to them. His great work behind the bat has had much to do with the high standing of the Brooklyn team thus far this season. He does not get troubled with sore hands, and is always ready and will go in and catch whenever he is wanted. Bushong is a fair batter also and his timely hits have sent in many a run for the Brooklyns when it was most needed.

Dave Orr made his reappearance with the Brooklyn team July 27, but he did not do any of his old time slugging. His presence, however, gave the remainder of the team more confidence. Orr, O'Brien, Caruthers and Foutz are the heavy batters of the Brooklyn team. O'Brien and Caruthers did some very good batting during this past week. Burdock, however, is the best sacrifice hitter on the nine. He cares little whether or not he gets a base hit so long as he can advance the runner a base or send in a run. Burdock is also playing remarkably well at second base. His fielding is something wonderful, and he greatly strengthens the team in a heretofore weak spot.

The Jersey Citys still hold second place in the race for the Central League pennant. As yet they have not been able to overcome the lead obtained by the Newarks. Both teams are playing good ball, but of the individual players Jersey City is thought to have the better men. The season is not over yet, and the chances are that the Jersey Citys will be in the lead when the two teams come up the homestretch. In little Daily the Jersey Citys have a great pitcher, and could the club get another as good a man as he is it would have little or no trouble in flying the pennant. Pyle is also doing fairly well, but he is not so puzzling in his delivery as little Daily is. Rhines has not turned out to be the phenomenon that was at first thought he would be. At least the Newarks found little difficulty in solving his curves.

CINCINNATI CHAT.

Movements of the Reds—How Midsummer Ice Formed in Porkopolis.

[Special Correspondence of The New York Clipper.]

CINCINNATI, July 29.—When the Reds—you hear no one call them the Cincinnatis—left for Philadelphia on Tuesday night there were twelve players, Manager Schelmz and Assistant Treasurer Hettesheimer in the party. Honest John Corkhill—"Pop," as Kid Baldwin affectionately terms him—made the trip a few days before, and he was booked to join the team in Philadelphia. The diet en route must have disagreed with the local pets, for the first bulletin from the haunts of the Quakers was alarming—eight runs in one inning off Mullane, the only. When the tickers announced three more in the third inning the atmosphere grew so cold that in front of Hawley's, where the ball cranks do mostly congregate, ice formed in the gutters. It was a chilly reception, but the second days' returns restored warmth to the baseball situation, for one out of three was about as much as the team expected to capture from Manager Sharsig's Blue Stockings. The Reds respect the slugging ability of Stovey, Larkin et al., and they know it means a battle to the end when Red meets Athletic. Manager Schmelz counting up the games to be played with the Philadelphians and Brooklyns—six in number—declared that if they won three of them he would return satisfied.

There are three of the boys at home—Weyhing, the new recruit, Jack O'Connor and "Hennie" Kappel. All of these players joined forces with the Shamrocks in a game with the Miamis of Dayton. The Shamrocks at one time was made up entirely of German American players, and the manager of of the club with the name that recalls "three little leaves of Irish green" is Harry Baumgartner. The Shamrocks, in the six or seven years they have existed, have served as a training school for players like Clark of the old Brooklyns, Marr and Beard of Syracuse, Reeder of Toledo, Meilhoff, Tom Sullivan, the new Kansas City pitcher, and a score of other professionals more or less known. The Shamrocks, made up mostly of professionals, went to Dayton the other day and were whitewashed. It was the first time in years they had been shut out, and the three Red Legs were called into service to help them out in the return game. O'Connor will hardly be called upon to catch for Cincinnati. He is a failure behind the bat but has the making of a fine fielder. He is a very hard hitter and in that last Kansas City game, won in ten innings by the Reds, he made a throw to the plate from deep centre that cut off a cowboy who was within a half dozen feet of scoring the run that would have insured another victory for his team. Serad went East but it is not likely that he will be called upon to pitch unless Viau, Mullane and Smith should give out. He will enjoy a visit to his wife and folks at Chester.

Since their final return from the West, which was a wind up of their first direful Eastern experience, the Reds have played twenty-two games on the local grounds. They won sixteen of them. Perhaps some idea may be had of the bitterness of the contests when it is revealed that six of the games were won by a single run. One was lost by that little margin. Two extra inning battles were fought and won—an eleven inning game from the Athletics—5 to 4, and a ten inning game from Kansas City—6 to 4. In several of these contests the other fellows had the most hits but the least runs. Base running is Cincinnatis strongest hold and without that they could never hope to be among the leaders. Manager Schmelz said the other day: "If Cleveland was a little heavier batting team they would soon push Cincinnati for the rank of the best base running team in the country."

The fact that there will be races in Cleveland next week will give Cincinnati an opportunity of enjoying three games of ball that were scheduled to be played there. The Reds jump home from Brooklyn, play Cleveland here on Aug. 3, 4 and 5, and then returning to meet Baltimore on their grounds on the afternoon of Aug. 6. That will be pretty quick traveling, but it has been done before and doubtless will again.

Cincinnati people are doing a great deal more talking about the alleged projected jump Leaguewardthan anybody in authority. President Stern, who is in the East on business, remote from baseball, has not been quoted on the subject, and he is relying upon outside papers for information. The same story was agitated a year or two ago, but there was not so much smoke evident there. There may be a little fire of truth about it this time. Just how much the future alone will tell. Tony Hellman has drifted to Columbus. Clark is now pitching for the Paris Blues down in Kentucky. The next series of trials in the long distance throwing match will take place during the Cleveland games. Vaughn still leads, his record being unbroken by the three Kansas City players who contested, McTamany, Davis, and Brennan. The Cincinnati Club hopes to be able to persuade the Kansas City Club to play the remaing series booked in the West on the local grounds. They offer more money than it is likely they would take in at their own gate. President Von der Ahe's idea of refusing to play here July 23 is now understood. He staid in Louisville, got whipped, and then went on to Baltimore to wipe out a postponed game there. Von der Ahe thinks that Cincinnati will be the club that St. Louis will have to beat to win the flag.

PHILADELPHIA POINTS.

"What's the Matter with the League Team?"—A Nut to Crack.

[Special Correspondence of the New York Clipper.]

PHILADELPHIA, July 30.—There certainly is something very much out of the way with the Philadelphia Club. The record of eight straight defeats they had met with up to Sunday, July 29, is certainly enough to give rise to the pertinent question: "What's the matter with the Philadelphias?" The charge has been made that the men are indulging in dissipation and a disregard for the rule which requires them to get at least sufficient sleep to enable them to keep awake on the field. The foundation for the story lay in the fact that two of the players were seen indulging in a glass of beer or two, and were seen to enter saloons. There has not been much, if any, dissipation in the Philadelphia Club this season.

Heretofore the Philadelphia Club has had the reputation of being the one above all others that excelled in team work. That feature is lacking lately and possibly this is due to lack of confidence in their ability to win.

A surprising weakness has developed in the pitching department of the team. With perfect support Buffinton is the only pitcher who can be depended on to win. Casey is this season far below his form, and it is only on occasions that he shows good strength. Gleason has, so far, been somewhat of a disappointment, considering the promising manner in which he started the season. Sanders pitches in good form, but he is generally handicapped by bad fielding. Weakness in batting is, perhaps, the chief cause of the team's inability to win. They never were much to speak of with the bat, but they seem weaker than ever now, and such a thing as a good solid rap is seldom forthcoming when men are on the bases. They seem nervous, too, on the bases, and do not show that boldness in stealing that used to distinguish them. Mulvey is back on the team, fully recovered from his injuries and subsequent illness, and Manager Wright is able to throw into the field a full team without one of the youngsters on it, but the same result marks each day's game—defeat for the erstwhile pets. Something must be done to save the credit of the team, for there's nothing the Philadelphia public will tire of quicker than everyday losers—and such the Philadelphians have lately become.

If something is not done soon to turn the tide the Athletics will have the call with the crowd since they are playing winning ball and are in the fight to win. As an illustration of what good ball will draw, I need only say that nearly thirty thousand people saw the three games with Cincinnati last week. The first game was on Thursday, July 26, and on account of the club's difficulties with Umpire Doescher and the Cincinnati players during one of the games of the Western series, a crowd turned out that was truly enormous for the middle of the week. The fact that it was the inauguration of "Ladies' Day" and one of the features was a brass band may have attracted more people than would otherwise have attended. On the result of the series depended the holding of third place, and Cincinnati decided it in favor of themselves by winning two of the three games. The game on Saturday, July 28, was attended by twelve thousand people. The contest was lost through a bad throw by Robinson, though it might have been saved later, when the home team had two men on bases with no one out. Not one of the succeeding batters could make the base hit that would have sent in the winning run, and not one of them seemed to consider the advantage of sacrificing. The team has the reputation of being an aggregation of sluggers, and they go to bat with a determination to hit out the ball with all their strength, trusting on their ability to send it beyond the field. Gleason and Bauer are the only players in the team who ever seem to consider it advantageous to advance a man by sacrificing themselves. If there were more of this sort of work there would be more victories scored to the credit of the club. The team's record however, is satisfactory to their admirers. The belief is growing in strength that they will win the American Association pennant. They fear none of their rivals who now hold a lead over them. A good deal of credit is due to the excellent direction of Manager Sharsig, who has succeeded in getting from the men the best playing they are capable of.

Arundel of the Washingtons was umpiring in the Philadelphia-Washington game July 23, and he did not show the slightest leaning towards fairness, and the visiting players did any amount of hooting, shouting, and behaved generally like a lot of toughs.

The Athletics are now engaged with the Kansas Citys, and they are expected to regain the little ground they lost through the two defeats received from the Cincinnatis. The Louisvilles come on Thursday, Aug. 2, and remain for three days, and on Sunday next, Aug. 5, the Kansas Citys return to play a postponed game at Gloucester.

The Philadelphias leave Boston and go to Washington Aug. 2, where they will endeavor to blot out the three defeats which the Senators inflicted on them here.

OUR BOSTON BUDGET.

Peculiar Circumstances Governing the Disbandment of a New England Team.

[Special Correspondence of The New York Clipper.]

BOSTON, July 29.—Very peculiar have been the circumstances connected with the disbandment of the Lynn Club of the New England League. Henry Murphy has been the proprietor of the club. Last year he sank some $3,000 in it, and his loss a this season have amounted to a like sum. He has had a winning team, but the patronage has been decidedly poor. There was every reason to suppose that the club would be well supported and would prove a success. A few weeks ago Director Conant of the Boston Club visited Lynn and offered $2,500 for the club—an offer that was not accepted—why not is a mystery. The offer was not renewed. Less than a week ago F. P. Lovell, of the John P. Lovell's Arms Co. of this city, acting for himself and A. J. Reach of Philadelphia, offered $1,000 for the club, but this fell to the ground because Laroque had been released. Naturally after the players had failed to obtain their salaries, their contracts were broken by the management, and they were at liberty to go where they pleased; in fact they were told by Mr. Murphy that they were at liberty to sign elsewhere. As far as I can learn the indebtedness of the team is over $1,500. The idea was to take the team and play it in Boston. Detroit gave $600 for Laroque, and, as far as can be learnt, not one cent of this money went to the players. Bobby Black was secured by the Wilkesbarre team. The Jackson (Mich.) Club was also willing to give a good price for the team. The players held together simply on account of their esteem for Manager George W. Brackett, who has worked hard and successfully to give Lynn a first class club, and they have expressed a willingness to go wherever he should say. The team has a hard hitting right fielder in Lenman, a good short stop in Spill, good pitchers in Hungler and Demaris and strong fielders in Captain Corcoran and Cook. What will be done with the players is a problem. Most of them will find no difficulty in obtaining positions.

As a matter of fact, Worcester is the only club in the New England League that has made any money. That club is in an exceedingly prosperous condition. It has averaged 1,100 people to every home game. How poorly other cities have encourage baseball may be seen from the fact that in only four instances this season have the Worcesters received more than the guarantee of $50. The attendance of late in Salem has averaged 350, and it has not been much better in any other place outside of Worcester. Worcester sold Pitcher Walker to Baltimore last week for $400, and got the better of the bargain at that. There were better pitchers to be had in the New England League. Then $1,500 were realized for the purchase of young Hamilton, centre fielder, a tremendous price to pay for him. A success in the New England League, it is entirely problematical how he will do in a stronger association. He is a fair batter, a fair fielder, but a dashing base runner. He is not today as good a man as Tom Brown, who cost Boston nothing, and is not as strong a man for his club as Sheffler of the Manchesters. Thus far the big associations have taken from the New England League

Ray, Klusman, Laroque and Hamilton. Ray is decidedly the most valuable man of the lot. Laroque ought to make a first class man for Detroit. As Stearns said, "He is no phenomenon, but a strong general player." He ought to give a good account of himself. Sheffler is sure to be secured by some club before the season is over. He is a splendid hitter, having a fine eye for the ball, and is a superb base runner. Salem is in a bad pickle. The owners of the franchise have gone as deep into their pockets as they care to, and they will sell at any price. These people have been trying to dispose of their club to Tom Lovell, to the Boston Club and to Springfield, but thus far without avail. Happily the players have been paid to date. Here are many A 1 players, Mitchell is one of the most promising young pitchers in the country. Worcester was willing to give $400 for him. Then there are Trask, a superb in and out fielder, Knowlton, a splendid catcher, fielder and base runner, who has made a great record in the games he has thus far played, Mike Hines, one of the best general utility men, Henry, right fielder, a strong player, and Long, a first class second baseman. There are few minor league clubs so evenly balanced as this Salem team. An attempt will be made to play out the season with Worcester, Manchester, Lowell and Portsmouth Clubs. Salem is talking of going on on the co-operative plan, but I scarcely think this will be done.

Now all this shows the utter folly of trying to run clubs in the smaller cities on the high salaries that prevail. The people that run these clubs must know that failure must come early with the high prices paid. Yet they vie with each other in securing high priced men and groan when they have to pay for it afterwards. I have always found that moderate priced teams will afford as much amusement and play as good ball. The Portsmouth team is the most moderate priced one in the New England League, and yet has the best base runners in that organization. A league formed of clubs of such a calibre could not but pay. Haverhill, Brockton, Lawrence, Portland and Lynn are among the cities in New England that have paid dearly for past experience, and will scarcely know better next time.

The Boston Club management failed to take advantage of the chances to put in a New England League Club in this city, which they could have done at small expense. A John B. Day would not have hesitated to take advantage of such an opening which really assured financial success.

C. B. Powers, the new appointee as umpire on the National League staff, made a decided failure of his attempt here Thursday. With the ball in the outfield, when it had been hit by Johnston, Donnelly stood on his base and deliberately interfered with Nash so that the latter was thrown to the ground and prevented from reaching the home base. There was no possible chance to retire Nash and Donnelly had no business to get on the base at all. The umpire should clearly have given Nash safe and fined Donnelly. These dirty plays on the diamond are getting more numerous lately, and it is about time that they were reprimanded.

The Bostons got a warm reception despite their unfortunate record on their second trip, and 2,730 people saw the contest and applauded liberally. Ray made his first appearance in Boston and his first since his injury in Pittsburg. He played at short stop, but in the second game was transferred to second base. He will add greatly to the strength of the team. The Bostons surprised all by their hitting on Saturday. They batted O'Day for more hits and runs than they had made since May 22, when they administered such summary punishment to Van Haltren. The Boston people have been trying to get Donovan, of the Torontos, who captained the Lawrence and Salem Clubs. He is a strong batsman and a fine fielder. Last year he could have been secured for just his salary. Detroit, too, would like him.

Clarkson won his first game on Saturday, July 28, after nine defeats, and yet only ten hits have been made off him in his last three games. It has not been his pitching that has brought Boston so far down. It has been that unlucky and weak batting, disabilities of the players, and poor umpiring.

Forty-seven hundred people saw the two Washington games in Boston.

The Bostons stole sixteen bases on Saturday.

Vinton, the ex-Philadelphia pitcher, is to go into the box for Lowell.

Bates, the Harvard College pitcher, struck out fifteen of the Melrose nine on Saturday, when he pitched for the Beacons. Richardson, the famous catcher, had twelve put outs, five assists and one error, with no passed balls. Not a base was stolen off him.

Campbell and Gallivan, of the Harvard nine, are to play with the Kearsage Mountain nine.

J. J. Drohan, baseball editor of The Boston Globe, is confined to his house by illness, caused by overwork.

New England standing: Lowell, 35—23; Lynn, 35—26; Worcester, 31—26; Salem, 32—32; Manchester, 28—36; Portsmouth, 2—4.

ST. LOUIS NEWS.

The Browns Making a Pretty Fight to Continue in the Lead.

[Special Correspondence of The New York Clipper.]

ST. LOUIS, July 29.—What a magnificent fight the Browns are making to continue in the lead in the prettily contested race in the American Association ranks, and this in the face of the most disheartening circumstances! Where horoscopes were cast in the early Spring assigning them a good berth in sixth place, and those charitably disposed putting them in fifth, the grand work of the champions has knocked these sure thing estimates silly, and today they are out of sight of all these delirious calculations. Each member of the team seems determined to play ball as he never played before to maintain to the end the lead now held, and again land the flag for the fourth successive time.

With Devlin sick from over eating, and Hudson home attending upon the sick bed of his sister, the Browns were in a bad plight in Baltimore. King had been pitching great ball, and continuously so, for a month past, and it was feared the strain on his arm would prove too much for him. President Von der Ahe was in a quandary. It was too much to ask "Cannon ball Charley" to pitch the second game in Baltimore, so negotiations were opened up to secure another twirler. Zell of the Allentown Club was wanted, but the club management wanted $1,500 for his release—too much for a youngster. It was almost an impossibility to secure a man in time to go in the second game, and I am told King, after the first victory, volunteered to pitch not only the second game, but told President Von der Ahe he would, if able, pitch, the whole four games of the Baltimore series. His wonderful work has spoken for itself, and the Browns left Baltimore with three well won games added to their big string. King is a marvel of physical strength. His daily exercise in Winter at his father's brick kiln here, toying with a cannon ball for practice, keeps his mighty right arm in splendid trim, and he can stand pitching four games a week if necessary.

Had Nat. Hudson not been called home, the Browns would have captured four straight in Baltimore. King won in Cleveland today, making his fourth victory of five games in as many days. So anxious are the Browns to win the championship this year, that when Hudson left for Chicago, they held a star chamber session and agreed among themselves to chip in and buy the release of some pitcher—like Ramsey for instance. This shows a good wholesome spirit and is highly commendable. Capt. Comiskey has his men in fine playing trim, and this pulling together on the ball field as well as off, is largely responsible for a great deal of the Browns' continued success.

Nat. Hudson will join the team in Cleveland, and when Devlin is able to get back to work the champions will continue to play with renewed confidence and stronger determination than ever. Devlin is a caterer. He caters to his gastronomic predilections, and considers it his solemn duty to make a clean sweep through the bill of fare, from soup to nuts, inclusive. He eats oftener and more than any two men in the team. Latham says this is the reason he is "knock kneed." O'Neil is again batting with his old time vigor and vim. He has fully recovered his health, and is playing ball as he is capable of doing. Any one who knows O'Neil is safe in the conviction that when in condition he plays ball for all he is worth, and that he was perfectly innocent in the recent effort of Byrne to secure his release from the Browns by questionable methods. "Tip" will be the last man the St. Louis Club will allow to go to any other club, especially Brooklyn. The St. Louis Club would rather lose the championship than gain it by seeking to create dissatisfaction in the ranks of any of their competitors, with the view to the inevitable demoralization. I notice a whine from Joe Herr, the young short stop, who "wanted to go to market, but was left at home." Herr has no cause for complaint; he has been treated well by the members of the Browns, and given every kind of a show to play good ball. He was left home recently, because President Von der Ahe, so he stated prior to the club's departure, thought thirteen men were sufficient to do the work cut out for them on the present trip. Herr has been ordered to report in Cleveland, where he will join the team. This is the second outbreak by the young blood element of the team thus far this season, Lyons preceding with his public call for parental intercedence. Herr's anguish of soul remind me of the dramatization of "She."

We expect to take two games out of the City of Churches, and one if not two from Philadelphia. The Athletics will again be warmly welcomed upon their return to St. Louis Aug. 10. They are great favorites here.

The general feeling among the Association clubs, outside of Brooklyn, Cincinnati and possibly Cleveland, is for a return of the long established 25 cent tariff. If the old rates are restored when the Browns return, they will draw immense crowds. A good many employes in different establishments, especially factories in St. Louis, have "boycotted" the game and fines are imposed upon those who attend with the admission at 50 cents. Let Brooklyn and Cincinnati charge 50 cents. St. Louis, Baltimore and Louisville want 25 cents.

Ben Armstrong, the well known local crank, is in Rochester, N. Y., visiting his relatives. He writes that ex-Umpire Hoover is running a saloon there and his "drawing card" reads: "You're out. Come in." Ben says this decision has affected a great many people, and trade is booming in consequence.

Appleton, Wis., claims to have the strongest amateur team of Northern Wisconsin.

Pitcher Moffet, recently released by the Indianapolis Club, has signed with the Omahas.

July 30 was a great day for extra innings games among the teams of the different professional leagues and associations. In Detroit, the Detroit and Indianapolis teams played eleven innings, as also did the Bostons and Philadelphias in Boston. The Newarks and Wilkesbarres also played eleven innings in Newark, the home team, who won by 8 to 3, making five runs at the finish. In Rochester, the Rochesters and Troys had a sixteen inning contest, the home team then winning by 4 to 3.

Young King, of Princeton College, who was signed by the Athletics, of Philadelphia, as one of their pitchers, and who was released without being given a trial in a championship game, pitched for the Cape May nine against a strong team of Pennsylvania Railroad employees, July 26, at Cape May, N. J., and he succeeded in shutting the railroad men out without a safe hit, and struck out twenty six of their batsmen.

President Cushman of the International Association has issued a call for a special meeting of the clubs of that organization to be held Aug. 2 at the Genesee House, Buffalo, to consider the question of Sunday ball playing. Mr. Cushman says the Rochester and Syracuse Clubs violated the constitution by the game they played July 29. All the Canadian clubs in the International Association have sent in protests against the practice.

The arrangements have all been completed for a colored championship tournament at the Polo Grounds, commencing Aug. 18. The chances are that there will be four strong colored teams contesting for supremacy, viz.: Red Sox of Norfolk, Va.; Keystones of Pittsburg, Pa.; Gorhams of New York City, and Cuban Giants of Trenton, N. J.

A singular thing happened July 31, in the Athletic-Kansas City game, in Philadelphia. Welch made a single and Stovey a three bagger, in the eighth inning, but neither scored. Welch was caught stealing second and Stovey was thrown out at the home plate.

Con Reilly, the pugilist, received a terrible blow in the face July 24 at Miamisburg, O., while umpiring a game of ball between two teams. In the fifth inning a foul tip hit him in the jaw, and after having his lip sewed up he pluckily umpired the game to its close.

Catcher Farmer, lately released by the Pittsburg Club, has signed with the Athletics. He will catch for Weyhing. It is probable that Tom Gunning will be released. His arm is very lame, and he has been unable to throw for some time.

In the game at Allentown, Pa., July 28, between the Allentowns and Jersey Citys, the latter made only one safe hit from off Zell's pitching in eleven innings, and that was a scratch hit. Allentown won by a score of 3 to 2.

Umpire Valentine, of the National League staff, has asked for a leave of absence for a few days on account of sickness. It has been granted him.

THE NATIONAL LEAGUE.

New York and Detroit Nip and Tuck, With Chicago Close at Hand.

The record to July 30, inclusive, shows that the New Yorks are now tied with Detroit for first place in the race for the championship, both being closely followed by the Chicago team, while it seems as if the other clubs were already distanced. Pittsburg and Indianapolis are having a struggle for sixth place, in which they alternated last week.

New York vs. Washington.

These teams played their eleventh game July 30, at the Polo Grounds, and the New Yorks unexpectedly sustained their fourth defeat of the series. The Washingtons batted Crane's pitching hard, and succeeded in bunching their hits when most needed. Jim Whitney was in fine trim, and held the New Yorks down to three scattering safe hits. The New Yorks saved themselves from being shut out by getting in a run in the ninth inning. Ward then made a two base hit, stole third, and scored on a sacrifice hit by Connor. Hoy did the best batting for the visitors, his three hits embracing a home run.

Indianapolis vs. Chicago.

The Chicagos narrowly escaped being shut out July 24 in Indianapolis, their only run being scored in the ninth inning on a base on balls given Pfeffer and a safe hit by Burns. The home team took the lead by earning two runs in the first inning and held it throughout. Fine catches were made by Sullivan, Ryan and Van Haltren.

The Chicagos received their third successive defeat at the hands of the home team July 25, when they went back to third place in the championship race. Both pitchers were wild, but Boyle was steadier at critical points. A brilliant double play started by Glasscock saved the game in the ninth inning. Denny and Burns led in batting for their respective teams. Ryan made a home run.

Galvin shut out the Indianapolis team July 27, allowing them only six scattering safe hits. The home team scored one run on errors by Buckley and Denny, and batted out another run. Dunlap did the best fielding, accepting no fewer than thirteen chances at second base. Glasscock tried to spike Miller at the plate in the seventh inning, and they almost came to blows, but were separated by Umpire Kelly.

New York vs. Boston.

The tenth game of the series was played July 24, at the Polo Grounds, this city, and was won by the home team after a most exciting and prolonged struggle of thirteen innings. A single by Madden and a two bagger by Kelly earned a run for the visitors in the third inning. Singles by O'Rourke and Whitney, and an error by Wise enabled the home team to tie the score in the fifth. Each team made runs in the eighth and eleventh innings—one being due to errors by Richardson and Ward—and the score still remained tied. Safe hits by Welch, Ewing, Ward and Tiernan in the thirteenth inning gave the New Yorks three earned runs and the victory. Ewing and Kelly led in batting, while Ward and Richardson excelled in fielding.

The New Yorks, by beating the Bostons July 25, wrested second place from the Chicagos. Keefe was too much for the visitors, who made only four scattering singles, and their solitary run was the result of a timely hit by Morrill after Wise had been given his base on balls, the decision at the plate on the throw in by Gore being a close one, moreover. Sowders was very effective except in the fourth and ninth innings, when the home team bunched five safe hits, and, aided by errors by Klusman and Wise, scored five runs.

Philadelphia vs. Washington.

In Philadelphia, July 24, the Washingtons had a walk over, outplaying the home team at all points. Mulvey made his reappearance at third base after an absence of a month, and his fine fielding was the redeeming feature of the home team's work. The visitors batted Buffinton all over the field. O'Day held the home team down to four hits, two of which were made by Wood. Fogarty was injured in the fifth inning, and gave way to Hallman. Arundel, of the Washingtons, umpired in the absence of Valentine.

The Washingtons scored their fifth successive victory over the Philadelphias July 25, when Widner appeared in the box for the first time with the winners. The home team failed to bat Widner, making only four scattering safe hits. Wilmot batted the ball over the fence at right centre for a home run in the sixth inning, his hit being one of the longest made on the local grounds this season. Schoch's short stopping was the fielding feature. Powers, the new umpire, made his first appearance, and gave general satisfaction.

Chicago vs. Pittsburg.

An exciting finish marked the game July 30 in Chicago, the Pittsburgs then scoring their fifth victory in the series. Morris was batted hard and often, especially in the first and ninth innings. Krock was hit hard in the third inning, when the visitors got the lead, and also in the ninth, when they batted out the winning run after two men had been re'ired. Near the close of the game Flint was hurt by a foul tip, and gave way to Farrell.

Cleveland vs. Louisville.

The ninth game was played July 26 in Cleveland the Louisvilles then scoring their fifth consecutive victory of the series. O'Brien and Ewing both pitched remarkably well, only six safe hits being made off each. O'Brien, however, was wild in the eighth inning, when timely hits by Ewing and Mack helped the visitors to the winning run. McKean made a home run.

Superior fielding enabled the Louisvilles to win July 27, although they were then outbatted. The game was again stubbornly contested, the lead alternating until the last half of the ninth inning, when an error by McGlone gave the visitors the winning run after two men were out. Wolf and Goodfellow led in batting for their respective teams, the former being credited with two triple baggers.

Hard hitting helped the home team to a decisive victory July 28, it being the fifth of the series. Stratton was batted freely, especially by Hotaling and Gilks, who each made three safe hits. Wolf with two triple baggers was the only one of the visitors who seemed able to bat Bakely. The Clevelands fielded without an error.

Baltimore vs. St. Louis.

A postponed game was played off July 25 in Baltimore, Cantz, the new catcher of the home team then making his first appearance. King kept the Baltimores down to five safe hits. Cunningham was batted only in the first inning, when the visitors bunched three hits, and aided by a base on balls, secured four runs and a winning lead.

The reduction of the admission tariff caused an increased attendance July 25. King again pitched for the visitors, and was hit safely only six times. Smith was batted freely by the champions, but their hits were scattering, except in one inning. The visitors took the lead in the first inning and held it throughout. The home team narrowly escaped being shut out.

Timely hitting helped the champions to win July 27. The home team took the lead in the second inning and held it until the seventh. Lucky bunching of hits then gave the visitors seven runs in two innings. Milligan and Cunningham made home run hits over the left field fence.

The Baltimores beat the St. Louis for the second time this season July 28, the result being then due to timely batting and superior fielding. King was batted out of the box and then exchanged positions with McCarthy. Smith was rather wild, but he was supported in fine style, and McCarthy alone seemed able to bat him safely.

Brooklyn vs. Kansas City.

A closely contested and exciting game was played July 26 in Brooklyn, eleven innings being necessary before the question of victory was decided in favor of the home team. In the first and third innings the Brooklyns bunched six safe hits and secured five runs and a long lead. Errors by Peeples in the third inning gave the visitors their first run, and seven safe hits in the next two innings yielded them six more runs and the lead. The home team tied the score in the ninth on hits by Caruthers and Smith. In the eleventh inning Pinkney and O'Brien opened with safe hits and Caruthers went to first on balls, thus filling the bases. After Foutz had fouled out and Smith's hit had forced Pinkney at the plate, a passed ball let in the two winning runs. Esterday's short stopping was noteworthy.

An unexpected result marked the game played July 27, the Kansas City team then winning and thus evening up the victories in the series. The Brooklyns batted Porter freely, but were unable to bunch their hits when needed. The score stood a tie from the fourth until the last half of the ninth inning, when singles by Phillips and Donohue and a wild throw by Caruthers helped the visitors to the winning run. Orr made his first appearance with the Brooklyns since his injury.

The game played July 28 resulted in a decisive victory for the Brooklyns. Foutz pitched his first championship game on the home grounds, and he proved very effective except in the fifth inning, when the visitors bunched three of their five hits and earned one run. Umpire McQuade had lost his voice, and Holbert of the home team was called in to assist him.

Cleveland vs. St. Louis.

These clubs contended July 29, at Geauga Lake, near Cleveland, attracting a large attendance. King and O'Brien were batted rather freely, but the hits made off the latter were better bunched. The champions started off with a long lead and won easily. Zimmer led in batting with two double baggers.

Wanted at Once, First-class Serio-comic

Singers, Song and Dance Ladies, Comedians and Lady Musical Teams. Address E. A. SCHOCH, 3d and Chestnut Sts., Reading, Pa. LAUER'S GARDEN opens July 30, 88.

A few years ago there were a few players on the Banjo, here and there, who could read music or "play by note," but there was against this a large class who hammered the strings and head by "main strength," without the use of notes. This class of "plunkers" gave the Banjo a bad name among musicians, who said it was not a musical instrument, simply because they had never heard any music brought out of it. There was another class, who, having learned to play a tune or two, partly by note and partly by "ear," took such pride in their little achievement, that they would never "play the tune correct" before any other player, for fear that he might "catch it" and "steal" it from him.

"A LITTLE KNOWLEDGE IS A DANGEROUS THING."

Teachers, assuming a knowledge of music, have not done their duty to the Banjo, and much less to their pupils. They have often taken their money and kept them in ignorance. Pupils, thus ignorantly instructed, have taught their lack of knowledge or smattering of music to others. All this has helped to hold the Banjo back in the eyes of musicians. "S. S. STEWART'S BANJO AND GUITAR JOURNAL" is the advocate and champion of the Banjo as a musical instrument. In Number 47 of this JOURNAL just issued, will be found six full pages of new music, and several pages of interesting literary matter, of much interest to students and players alike. This JOURNAL costs only the small sum of TEN CENTS per copy, and no player can afford to be without it. It makes very slight difference to the publisher whether you buy and read the JOURNAL, or whether you go to some well advertised, but unqualified, teacher, and pay him FIFTY TIMES THE PRICE of the JOURNAL for similar information. But it makes considerable difference to you. STEWART publishes a large class of sheet music for the Banjo—for two Banjos—and for the Banjo and Piano. The Banjoist who does not play such music, and read it correctly from the notes, is indeed far, far behind the times.

When STEWART began publishing Banjo music, properly arranged, and at a price within the reach of all, some ignorant and crafty teachers did their best to "cry it down," stating that it was not "right," etc., etc. They meant that it was not right to deprive them of a business of charging five and ten times more for Banjo music than it was worth. And there are yet, here and there, some fools who will pay one or two dollars for a "tune" to some "old time" teacher, rather than buy the plate edition, handsomely printed, of STEWART, for a few cents. Well, it's in their blood. Did not their grand dad's load their asses with a bag of stones on one side to balance a sack of goods on the other. Why should they make any improvements unknown to their ancestors?

But the Banjo is making rapid headway in the hands of skillful players. It is fast leaving the "Ham" behind, with one leg deeply stuck in the mud.

In a forthcoming work, now being written by MR. STEWART, entitled "THE BANJO," there will be given to the public more knowledge of the Banjo subject than has ever yet been given.

Until this work is ready, read the JOURNAL for information. Address

THE OARIC CHAMPIONSHIP.

Although there have been a number of professional rowing contests in American waters since the season opened, the first really important event yet arranged for decision is the match which is to be decided on Thursday of the current week, in which Champion John Teemer and Albert Hamm will cross blades with ex-Champion Jacob Gaudaur and John McKay of Halifax. The match, which has engaged the attention of all interested in boating matters ever since its ratification, several weeks ago, is for the championship of America and $2,500 a side, and is to be decided on the broad bosom of Saratoga Lake, where so many notable struggles have in years past taken place between the crack professional and amateur oarsmen of this and other countries. The rowing water was not named until the latter part of last week, an opportunity being given for citizens of different eligible places to offer pecuniary inducements to the oarsmen to secure the prize race of the season; but the anticipated rich purses were not hung up, and last Friday Referee George Faulkner selected Saratoga as the scene of the impending battle of the sculls. A better selection could not have been made, the locality being possessed of many advantages not presented by other places that have been spoken of. At this season of the year the water is generally calm, while that part of the lake over which the race will be rowed presents a surface perfectly fair for both crews, rendering a toss for choice of stations a mere formality. The season at the fashionable Springs is now almost at its height, too, and the people who are Summering there will hail it as a welcome addition to the attractions of the place, and may be depended upon to extend a liberal patronage; while so accessible is Saratoga, and so great the accommodations offered by the immense caravansaries within its limits, that there is sure to be a large increase in the floating population on Thursday. Thus will a greater number of people be afforded an opportunity to witness the contest, and the oarsmen will have the satisfaction of exhibiting their prowess before a larger and more fashionable throng than could be gathered together on the shores and bosom of any other lake in the East. The principals have been assiduously preparing for the encounter, the champion and mate, together with McKay, having varied the monotony of regular training by engaging in regattas at different places, thereby picking up enough to pay part of the expenses incidental to training, while Gaudaur has remained quietly at his quarters on the Merrimac, getting himself in the finest possible fix for what he recognizes will be a severe struggle. Both couples have had plenty of practice together, and are reported as rowing in capital form, and the indications are that, with favorable conditions, the race will be one of the finest, fastest and most desperately contested ever witnessed on any water. We trust that nothing may occur to prevent a decisive result being reached.

SPORT AT SARATOGA SPRINGS.

The Season Opens Brilliantly at Fashion's Summer Home.

The meeting of the Saratoga Racing Association opened at their beautiful grounds on the morning of Tuesday, July 24, under auspices of the most favorable character, the weather being warm and sunny, the gathering of fashionable people, and others not so fashionable, very large, and the track in splendid condition, barring the presence of considerable dust, which, however, did not bother or inconvenience the people in the grand stand. The racing was generally good, although the Travers Stakes proved a disappointment, for the reason that the best of the entries, with the exception of Sir Dixon, did not start, and, as expected, the Dwyers' speedy and game colt won with ease. The betting was spirited, and the day's racing was characterized by surprises, only two favorites being successful, while two winners repaid their few backers very handsomely. Result of races: Introductory scramble, for three year olds and upward, purse $400, of which $100 to second horse, five furlongs—J. B. Haggin's Yum Yum, by Onondaga, 3—104, Winchell, first, in 1:04¼; Egmont, 5—118, Lewis, the favorite, second, by a head; Estrella, 5—113, Murphy, third, a length behind.....Purse $500, of which $100 to second, the entrance money, $15 each, to be divided between second and third, a mile and a furlong—M. N. Nolan's Oarsman, by Onondaga, 4—97, Ossler, first, in 1:57¾; Cruiser, 3—101½, Williams, second, by a nose; Bohemian, 3—95, Barnes, third, by the same distance..... The Travers' Stakes, for three year olds, $100 each, $50 forfeit, $1,000 added, $500 to second, a mile and six furlongs—Dwyer Bros.' Sir Dixon, by Billet, 118, J. McLaughlin, the favorite, first, in 3:07¾; Los Angeles, 113, Murphy, second, by three lengths; Falcon, 118, Hamilton, third, ten lengths behind..... Purse $400, of which $100 to second, selling allowances, the entrance money, $10 each, to be divided between second and third, six furlongs—R. Tucker's Jaubert, by King Ban, 4—106, Barnes, first, in 1:17; Ballston, 3—100, Newmeyer, the favorite, second, by a nose; Carrie G., 3—104, Doane, third, close up.....The Helter Skelter Steeplechase, a handicap steeplechase of $50 each, $800 added, $200 to second, the third to save its stake, about a mile and a half—E. Corrigan's Tennessee, by Ten Broeck, 6—170, Canavan, first, in 2:56; Abraham, aged, 146, Delaney, second, by several lengths; Brac a Ban, 4—128, Kenney, the favorite, third.

The expected meeting of Terra Cotta, the pride of the West, and Kingston, the Dwyer crack, was the chief attraction on the second day of the meeting, 26, and drew a big crowd, but as the former had seven pounds the worst of the weights, and the Dwyer entry was known to be in fine fettle, his owners concluded at the last minute not to start him, thus causing great disappointment, but saving Terra Cotta from a hard race and a probable defeat. The racing throughout was good, the weather pleasant and the track excellent. Result: The Flash Stakes, for two year olds, $100 each, h. f., $700 added, $200 to second, penalties and allowances, half a mile—B. F. Pettitt's Princess Bowling, by Prince Charlie, 107, Barnes, an equal favorite with Fides, first, in 0:50½; Servia, 100, William, second, by half a length; Diablo, 115, J. McLaughlin, third, two lengths away.....Purse $500, for three year olds and upward, the entrance money, $20 each, to second, penalties and allowances, a mile and three sixteenths—M. N. Nolan's Carsman, by Onondaga, 4—103, Ossler, first, in 2:05; Bessie June, 4—114, J. McLaughlin, second, by a neck; Brown Duke, 5—105, Williams, third, three lengths away. .....The California Stakes, for all ages, $50 each, $20 forfeit, $700 added, $200 to second, $100 to third, allowances, one mile—Dwyer Bros.' Kingston, by Spendthrift, 4—114, J. McLaughlin, the favorite, first, in 1:44; Climax, 5—117, Williams, second, by a neck; Volante, 6—120, Murphy, third, three lengths behind.....Purse $400, of which the entrance money and $50 to second, for three year olds and upward, allowances, six furlongs—McClelland & Co.'s Badge, by Ill Used, 3—104, Barnes, the favorite, first, in 1:16; Lelex, aged, 107, second, by a length; Clay Stockton, 3—94, Ossler, third, by the same distance.....Purse $400, for all ages, the entrance money, $15 each, to go to second, selling allowances, a mile and seventy yards—W. Hendrie's Banjo, by Tympanum, 3—91, Donnelly, first, in 1:49; Lottie Wall, 4—108, Barnes, the favorite, second, by half a length; Jennie McFarland, Covington, third, a length away. Odds of 25 to 1 were laid against the winner.

Friday, 27, was the first extra day of the meeting, and as the programme was light, while the weather was threatening and the track heavy from a rainfall the preceding evening, there was only a small attendance. Result: Purse $600, for all ages, $50 to second, penalties and allowances, six furlongs—Lamasney Bros.' Banner Bearer, by Enquirer, 5—112, Williams, first, in 1:18½; Golden Reel, 3—99, Doane, second, by two lengths; Von Tromp, 3—109, Hamilton, third, half a length away.....Purse $300, for maiden three year olds, $50 to second, allowances, five furlongs—R. H. Handicap hurdle race, purse $350, of which $50 to second, a mile and three sixteenths—E. H. Storms' Voltiguer, by Bullion, 4—140, Storms, first, in 2:20; Percy, 6—138, Guerin, second, by two lengths; Lijero, 5—135, Hayden, third, a neck behind.

A most unfortunate accident marred the pleasure of the many people who were attracted to the course on Saturday afternoon, 28, J. H. Morris, the gentleman rider, and a partner of the late Harry Harwood of Baltimore, being thrown in the steeplechase and his horse, Warrington, rolling over him. He was picked up insensible and carried to the residence of a friend in the immediate vicinity of the track, where he received the best of medical treatment. It was discovered that one of his ribs was split, his arm broken, his mouth severely cut and other injuries sustained by him. This accident cast a gloom over what had previously been an exceptionally merry throng. It will be remembered that Mr. Harwood was injured in a similar way at the Fall meeting in Washington, D. C., last year, dying from the effects of his wounds last February. The weather was delightful, the attendance large and the track good, while the betting was brisk, the bookmakers, as usual, scooping in most of the money, as the public only backed one favorite. Result: Purse $400, for three year olds and upward, $15 each, the entrance money to go to the second horse, allowances, six furlongs—J. B. Haggin's Yum Yum, by Onondaga, 3—95, Freeman, the favorite, first, in 1:16¼; Banner Bearer, 5—108, Williams, second, by three lengths; Lottie Wall, 4—104, Stone, third, four lengths away. .....The Alabama Stakes, for three year old fillies, $100 each, h. f., $800 added, $300 to second, allowances, a mile and a furlong—Dwyer Bros.' Bella B., by Enquirer, 113, McLaughlin, first, in 1:58; Los Angeles, 113, Murphy, the favorite, second, by a neck; Prose, 103, Hamilton, third, a length away.....Free handicap sweepstakes, for all ages, $20 each, $500 added, $125 to second, a mile and a sixteenth—J. H. Thompson's Dad, by Chillicothe, 6—104, Newmeyer, first, in 1:49¾; Vosburg, 4—92, Freeman, second, by a neck; Brown Duke, 5—108, third, lapping.....Purse $400, for two year olds, $50 to second, the entrance money, $10 each, to second, allowances, six furlongs—L. E. Simmons' Queen of Trumps, by Ill Used, 102, Freeman, first, in 1:17; Bootmaker, 110, Hamilton, second, by a length; Chilhowie, 105, Covington, third, three lengths away.....Handicap steeplechase, purse $400, of which $100 to second, about two miles and a quarter—P. Gorman's Beechmore, by Creedmoor, aged 141, McBride first, no time being taken; Killarney, aged, 139, second, by three lengths; Abraham, aged, 155, Delaney, third, a dozen lengths away.

A FILLY by Pell Mell out of an imported mare, which was bought by Milton Young at J. B. Ferguson's sale for $400, is stated to have run a quarter mile in 23¾ on the track at Lexington, Ky., July 24. Her owner says that he would not take $5,000 for the filly.

MONMOUTH PARK RACES.

Connemara Heads a List of Surprises at the Branch.

The meeting of the Monmouth Park Racing Association was continued on Tuesday afternoon, July 24, the weather being fine, the crowd large, and the sport most excellent, although the favorites were slaughtered right and left, to the joy of the penciling fraternity and of the few backers of the outsiders, three of whom were 10 to 1 shots when they went to the post, while so fast a sprinter as Little Minch was held at odds of 4 to 1 in the opening dash of six furlongs. Result of races: The Passaic Stakes, for all ages, $50 each, $15 forfeit, $1,000 added, $250 to second, allowances, six furlongs—Chicago Stable's Little Minch, by Glenelg, aged, 113, A. Covington, first, in 1:15; Aurella, 4—115½, Garrison, second, by a head; Geraldine, 3—94, Goodale, the favorite, third, a neck behind.....The Colleen Stakes, for two year olds, $50 each, $15 forfeit, $1,500 added, $500 to second, penalties and allowances, six furlongs—A. Donohue, soon took the lead and held it till after passing the five furlongs' pole, when he suddenly stopped and fell to the rear. It was afterward ascertained that he had split the pastern joint of his off foreleg, which accident puts an end to his career as a racer.....Purse $600, for three year olds and upwards, selling allowances, one mile—D. Gideon's Luminary, by Reform, 3—93, Armstrong, first, in 1:43¼; Long Knight, aged, 117, Garrison, second, by a length; St. Valentine, 4—105, W. Donohue, third, two lengths away.....Handicap steeplechase, purse $600, of which $100 to second, over the short course—Stanley Mortimer's Westmoreland, by Wilful, aged, 147, Mara, first, in 3:14¼; Bassanio, 5—145, W. Lynch, the favorite, second, by three lengths; Willie Palmer, 5—135, Nagle, third, by the same distance.

The sensation of the day on the 26th was the victory of Connemara in the race for the Navesink Handicap, a mile and a half, for which Firenzi was made a red hot favorite, with Belvidere selling well up, a pile of money going on at 7 to 5 and 4 to 1 respectively. The speedy daughter of Stratford carried but 100lb, with which light impost she ought to have run well under any circumstances, but she was given a flying start of three lengths the spectators did not give her credit for a fair victory, attributing the result solely to the advantage which the starter gave her over better horses. This caused a deal of ill feeling, and many expressions the reverse of complimentary to Mr. Caldwell. With the exception of one, all the other events resulted in surprises also, the record for the afternoon showing only one favorite among the list of winners. In the first race Grimaldi, a 8 to 1 chance, won in the fastest six furlong time made in the East this season, 1:13¾. There was a pleasant breeze, which was enjoyed by the large crowd in attendance, and the track was in fine condition. Result: Handicap sweepstakes for three year olds and upward, $25 each, $750 added, $150 to second, six furlongs—D. T. Pulsifer's Grimaldi, by Lisbon, 5—112, Goodale, first, in 1:13¾; Shotover, 111, Blaylock, second, by a length and a quarter; Fitzroy, 4—111, Palmer, third, a neck behind.....The Optional Stakes, for two year olds, $50 each, $15 forfeit, $1,000 added, $250 to second, selling allowances, six furlongs—D. Gideon's Groomsman, by Dalnacardoch, 106, Camp, an equal favorite, with Brahmin, first, in 1:16¼; Clarissa, 93, Anderson, second, by a length; Bell Barnes, 118, F. Littlefield, third, half a length behind.....The Trenton Stakes, for three year olds, $50 each, $15 forfeit, $1,000 added, $250 to second, selling allowances, a mile and a furlong—S. S. Brown's Defaulter, by Spendthrift, 106, Taylor, first, in 1:57¾; Little Jim, 106, Rafferty, second, by half a length; King Ernest-Minority colt, 106, Palmer, the favorite, third, two lengths away..... The Navesink Handicap, a sweepstakes for all ages, $50 each, h. f., $2,000 added, $500 to second, a mile and a half—Oakwood Stable's Connemara, by Stratford, 4—100, Anderson, first, in 2:35½; Firenzi, 4—121, Garrison, the favorite, second, by nearly three lengths; Eurus, 5—122, W. Hayward, third, two lengths behind.....Handicap sweepstakes, for all ages, $30 each, $1,000 added, $250 to second, one mile—M. Jordan's Joe Lee, by Voltiguer, 3—95, Anderson, first, in 1:42¼; Telie Doe, 6—109, F. Littlefield, second, by less than a length; Strideaway, 4—94, Hayward Jr., third, a neck behind..... Purse $600, for three year olds and upward, the entrance money, $18 each, to the second, selling allowances, seven furlongs—J. J. Hyland's Grenadier, by Glenelg, 6—104, F. Littlefield, first, in 1:29; Malaria, aged, 105, Church, second, by four lengths; Rowland, 5—116, Garrison, third, a head behind.

The large holiday assemblage that was present on Saturday afternoon enjoyed themselves as they had done on no previous day since the opening of the meeting, as the weather was beautiful, the card embraced eight races, and the honors were about equally divided between favorites and others. It was a red letter day for "Snapper" Garrison, who won three stake races. G. B. Morris was quite successful, also, winning the first two races, in each of which that clever jockey Elike was on the winner. Result: Handicap sweepstakes, for all ages, $25 each, $750 added, $150 to second, seven furlongs—G. B. Morris' Brait, by Princeton, 6—110, Elike, first, in 1:28¼; Swift, aged, 105, Anderson, the favorite, second, by half a length; Flageoletta, 4—102½, F. Littlefield, third, six lengths away..... The Sapling Stakes, for two year olds, $100 each, h. f., $1,500 added, $500 to second, penalties and allowances, six furlongs—G. B. Morris' Tipstaff, by Rayon d'Or, 105, Elike, first, in 1:15¼; Faverdale colt, 115, W. Fitzpatrick, second, by a length and a half; Cadence colt, 108, Taylor, the favorite, third, three lengths off..... The Raritan Stakes, for three year olds, $50 each, $15 forfeit, $1,500 added, $500 to second, penalties and allowances, a mile and a quarter—A. Belmont's Raceland, by Billet, 120, Garrison, the favorite, first, in 2:13; Taragon, 108, Palmer, second, by a length and a half; Kaleidoscope, 108, F. Littlefield, third, half a length away.....Handicap sweepstakes, for all ages, $35 each, $1,250 added, $350 to second, a mile and a quarter—W. B. Jennings' Frank Ward, by Voltigeur, 5—97, Anderson, and Montague, 3—109, Shauer, ran a dead heat, in 2:10¾, and divided the money; Aretino, aged, 98, Palmer, the favorite, third, three lengths away.....Scud Welter Handicap Sweepstakes, for all ages, $20 each, $600 added, $100 to second, gentlemen riders allowed 7lb, five furlongs—J. A. & A. H. Morris' Britannic, by Plevna, 5—143, Garrison, first, in 1:02; Sir Joseph, 5—135, W. Fitzpatrick, second, by two lengths; Ban Cloche, 4—124, W. Hayward, third, barely beaten. .....Scud Welter Handicap Sweepstakes, for all ages, $20 each, $600 added, $100 to second, gentleman riders allowed 7lb, five furlongs—McMahon & Co.'s Speedwell, by Spendthrift, 3—124, Garrison, the favorite, first, in 1:02; Mona, aged, 126, Taylor, second, by a length and a half; Rowland, 5—105, W. ED. CORRIGAN, the Kansas City turfman, became involved in trouble in Chicago last week, through assaulting Samuel Lavis at the West Side track on July 24. He was arrested, and upon being brought before Justice Woodman, charged with assault, he was placed under $800 bail to appear for trial on Aug. 4.

Mortality Among Thoroughbreds.

A dispatch from Lexington, Ky., dated July 18, says: "A singular faccident occurred to Moore & Landeman's chestnut yearling by King Ban, dam Hira, by Lexington, at the Association course this morning. He was taking his morning work, and when turning into the stretch injured his spine and left shoulder. He had to be destroyed. Owners thought highly of him. The trotting stallion Crittenden, 17 years, by Stradius C. M. Clay Jr., died of colic last night at Gaywood, Woodford County. He was out of Belle Wayne, by Embry's Wagner, and had sired several in the 3:00 list. He was owned by R. S. Straker and Mrs. Jno Stout. The superb broodmare Mary Mambrino, 17 years, by Mambrino Patchen, dam Belle Wagner, by Embry's Wagner, died yesterday at Orchard Grove Farm, this city. She was dam of Elivira, besides other good horses. E. A. Collins, of William, Tenn., was her owner."

RAPID PHOTOGRAPHY.—Ernest Marx photographer of animals in motion, is a resident of Plainfield, N. J. His instantaneous photographs of race horses at full speed are pronounced by The Photographic Times, an authority on the subject, the best ever seen. Hereafter it is probable that the art will form an important factor in deciding the position of the horses in close finishes on the race track, and will put an end to such aggravating disputes as have taken place in regard to the result of races run on some of the leading courses of the East this season. Mr. Marx was engaged by the Rochester Driving Park Association to assist the judges in their work of placing the horses, and will probably be present at other meetings in the circuit. In the Fall he will exercise his art at the meeting of the Brooklyn Jockey Club.

SPORT AT WAVERLY.—A number of horsemen gathered at the track at Waverly, N. J., on Saturday afternoon, July 28, to witness two advertised trots, which resulted as follow: Class 2:37—R. Cadugan's Valdme first, Edison (won the third heat) second, Mambrino Ross third, and Atlantic fourth. Time, 2:33, 2:33½, 2:36¼, 2:34. Match, $500—W. H. Lockwood's O. S. B. first, Frank M. (won the second and third heats) second. Time, 2:32¾, 2:33, 2:29¼, 2:27, 2:33¾.

GUS. KOERSEL, Manager.

Ten Cent Museums flourish all over this country, furnishing wholesome and instructive diversion to millions who might otherwise suffer for that which only the rich could afford. The pioneer founder of these mammoth enterprises is Wm. Austin, of Boston, Mass., recently the head and front of the museum which for five years has borne his name in connection with that of another in the enterprising metropolis which claims his citizenship. Without any exception, Mr. Austin has been the most successful (therefore the most highly appreciated) Manager of Museums in this country, a fact largely due to his wonderful perception and foresight, which enables him to grasp ideas in advance of his contemporaries, to feel the public pulse long before it realizes the direction of its own beating, and, with that courage which is an inborn trait with successful men, to carry into execution enterprises of the most stupendous magnitude. Accident or necessity in various walks of life often makes our greatest men. Necessity drove Mr. Austin into the show business. Having loaned a sum of money to an unsuccessful amusement manager, he was obliged to become a manager himself in order to secure the return of his loan. Accepting the new position which Dame Nature in her inexplicable ways had peculiarly fitted him for, he was obliged to bend every energy to recover that which he had loaned from the new and apparently worthless property which had passed to him. His first experience, therefore, as a manager began at Forest Garden, in Boston, less than ten years ago. Here he struggled for two years, the first being satisfactorily successful, the second not so. Readily perceiving that the gradual reduction of prices in the commercial world was the cause of a decrease in his business, he at once made a move in the direction of cheap prices for rational amusements. Unlike most others in moves of this kind, he made no decrease in his expenses, but, on the contrary, made unusual exertions towards presenting even better attractions than before. His efforts were appreciated by a ready response from the public. It caused him to recognize the fact that a Dime Museum would pay; thereupon securing a new location at 77 New Washington Street, he started the first Dime Museum. Immediate success crowned his efforts and impelled him to secure even better facilities, and, in two months' time, he had a more central location, near the Boston Theatre. This place he soon after sold to Keith & Batcheider, and it was known as the Gaiety Theatre. He then leased for a term of five years the stand on Tremont Row now known as Austin & Stone's (although Mr. Austin is no longer connected with it), and during the term of that lease he has been piling up wealth, not only for himself, but for the partner with whom he was connected. People with different natures do not easily agree in business matters. Mr. Austin was progressive, full of whole-souled energy and public liberality; not content with gratifying himself merely, but always zealous in catering to the public in the most liberal manner, feeling a deep sense of gratification when others were made happy by any efforts which he could put forth; the partnership therefore was not a pleasant one, and on this account he disposed of his interest in the Tremont Row establishment, and at once began looking for a place where he could cater to the public in his own generous manner, and in perfect freedom from partnership restraint. His active life-habits will not allow him to remain idle, although he might well do so, as he is placed beyond the needs of want or compulsory care. His great desire now is to give to the public some return for the many favors which they have shown him in the past, and he knows of no better way than by establishing a Nickel Museum, a Colshall not only eclipse his own previous efforts, but where rich and poor, lectanea, and a Repositorium, on a new and magnificent scale, which themselves in the study of the quaint, the curious, the artistic, and the scientists, scholars, sages, priests, or the laboring millions may enjoy advent of a New Era in Amusement Enterprises, and the Founder of Dime beautiful, at the merely nominal fee of Five Cents. This will be the public will not be slow in recognizing in him a truly public benefactor. Museums will be the Founder of Nickel Museums, and an appreciative presented at the Dime Museums, for neither money nor pains will be The attractions at Austin's Nickel Museum will be even better than those spared to give the public the greatest amount of pleasure for the smallest amount of money. Artists for the Stage Department, Curiosities for the Collectanea, Human and Animal Wonders and Nature's Freaks for the Museum, and Beautiful, Quaint, Artistic and Novel Rarities for the Repositorium, have been and are still being secured from all parts of the world, regardless of expense. All artists, managers, agents or individuals in the public at large, in any part of the known world, having anything which it would be pleasing for the people to see or hear, are requested to write at once to Al. Haynes, 47 Hanover Street, Boston, Mass. Write full particulars, enclosing picture of attraction if possible, and your interests as well as those of the public will be attended to.
